

Anticipation Guide

5.1.1
a

Statement	Response before inquiry What do you think now? Why?	Response after inquiry What do you think now? Why?
People have lived in North America for many thousands of years.
The First Peoples in North America were ancestors of today's First Nations peoples.
During several periods of time long ago, called the ice ages, most of North America was covered in ice.
First Nations peoples have different stories about how they came to be in North America.
Scientists can tell exactly when the first human beings lived on North American soil.
Oral tradition includes stories that contain valuable information about history.
There is definite scientific evidence to prove that human beings came to North America over an exposed land bridge in today's Bering Strait.
In one or two sentences, explain how your ideas have changed.		