SPANISH LANGUAGE AND CULTURE
SIX-YEAR JUNIOR/SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL PROGRAM

INTRODUCTION
Background

Western and Northern Canadian Protocol (WNCP)

The Common Curriculum Framework for Spanish Language and Culture, Four-Year High School Program is a project of the Western and Northern Canadian Protocol for Collaboration in Basic Education. This Framework was developed through the cooperative efforts of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. The ministers of education of these provinces have agreed to collaborate in basic education because of the importance they place on four major goals:

• high standards of education
• common educational goals
• removing obstacles to the access of educational opportunities for students, including improving the ease of transfer from jurisdiction to jurisdiction
• optimum use of educational resources

Description of the Project

The Common Curriculum Framework for Spanish Language and Culture, Six-Year High School Program follows from earlier initiatives to develop common curriculum frameworks for international languages. Thus, this Framework was based on three documents:

• Common Curriculum Framework for International Languages Kindergarten to Grade 12 (June 2000), WCP
• Program of Studies: Spanish Language and Culture Grade 7 to Grade 9, Alberta Learning, 2001
• Program of Studies: Spanish Language and Culture 10-20-30, Alberta Learning, 2002

Introduction

The Common Curriculum Framework for Spanish Language and Culture, Six-Year Junior/Senior High School Program provides teachers with student outcomes they can use to develop curricula and implement Spanish language of study courses (also known as core or basic courses). Teachers, educational administrators, parents, and other interested parties will find useful information about what to expect from programming in Spanish language and culture and about effective approaches to Spanish language learning.

This Framework provides outcomes for students entering a six-year program at Grade 7 and continuing until Grade 12. A Framework for Spanish Language and Culture, Four-Year High School Program is also available.

The two frameworks are intended to be used for “language of study” programming, where the acquisition of second-language and cultural skills is the primary focus. This is distinct from bilingual or immersion programming, in which the language is not only a subject but is also used as the medium of instruction for other school subjects during a significant part of the day.

Rationale for a Common Curriculum Framework for Spanish Language and Culture

A common Spanish Language and Culture framework of general and specific outcomes will help

• in ensuring that the curriculum development process draws on the experiences and expertise of the participating jurisdictions and beyond
• the development of provincial curricula and facilitate other collaborative interprovincial initiatives in support of Spanish Language education
• program developers plan a coherent program of studies that moves smoothly from one level to the next, especially at the transition points between elementary, junior high, and high school
• post-secondary institutions plan international language courses that articulate well with secondary level courses
• post-secondary institutions determine equivalency between different second language courses, for entrance or assessment purposes
• parents and students transferring from one school jurisdiction to another or one province to another
• employers know what to expect from students in terms of language proficiency.*

Rationale for Learning Spanish Language and Culture

Over 300 million people in the world speak Spanish. It is the official language of the following countries: Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Puerto Rico, Spain, Uruguay, and Venezuela. It is also spoken in many other countries in which it is not the official language, including the United States and the Philippines. It is one of the most widely spoken languages in the world.

There are many compelling reasons for a Canadian to study Spanish. Apart from the advantages that come with knowing another language, knowing Spanish permits an insight into the rich and varied cultures developed in the Spanish-speaking world and bestows more opportunity to communicate directly with its people. As well, for some students with a prior knowledge of the language and cultures, it offers an opportunity for renewed contact. It contributes to maintaining and developing literacy for those whose first language is Spanish.

The learning of Spanish, as with any other language, develops awareness of and sensitivity to cultural and linguistic diversity. In addition to preserving cultural identity, learning Spanish is also a means of cultural enrichment and is the best means of fostering understanding and solidarity among peoples and countries. Furthermore, it gives individuals the opportunity to identify, question, and challenge their own cultural assumptions, values, and perspectives and to contribute positively to society.

There is also significant evidence to suggest that learning another language contributes to the development of increased grammatical abilities in the first language and enhances cognitive functioning. Learning a second language increases the ability to conceptualize and to think abstractly; and it fosters greater cognitive flexibility, divergent thinking, creativity, and metalinguistic competence.

Moreover, in today’s world, the knowledge of a second language and culture in general is a benefit for individuals, providing skills that enable them to communicate and interact effectively in the global marketplace and workplace. Given the important economic role the Spanish-speaking countries are playing in the international market, and given their increasing trading partnership with Canada, the learning of Spanish provides an important economic advantage.

The Spanish Language and Culture, Six-Year Junior/Senior High School Program is intended for students who are beginning their study of Spanish language and culture in junior high school.

* See Appendix B for definitions of terms.
Assumptions
The following statements are assumptions that have guided the development of The Common Curriculum Framework for Spanish Language and Culture, Six-Year Junior/Senior High School Program:

• Language is communication.
• All students can be successful learners of language and culture, although they will learn in a variety of ways and acquire proficiency at varied rates.
• All languages can be taught and learned.
• Learning Spanish as a second language leads to enhanced learning in both the student’s primary language and in related areas of cognitive development and knowledge acquisition. This is true of students who come to the class with some knowledge of Spanish and develop literacy skills in that language. It is also true for students who have no knowledge of Spanish.

Effective Language Learning
The following are some general principles of effective language learning that the research on second language learning and acquisition has identified. These principles have guided the development of the conceptual model used in this Framework.

Focus on Meaning
Language learning is more effective when classes are structured around meaningful tasks* rather than around elements of the Spanish language itself, such as grammatical structures, vocabulary themes, or language functions. The principal focus of classroom activities is on communication in Spanish while learning about a content area (e.g., the geography of the Spanish-speaking world), or while carrying out a project (e.g., creating a family album). Specific language skills are taught when students have noticed that they need specific vocabulary, structures, or functions to carry out the task they have chosen to do. When Spanish language learning has a purpose, students are more highly motivated.

Focus on Interaction
Students learn languages more effectively when they have ample opportunity to work in small groups on tasks that they have had a hand in choosing and that require them to negotiate meaning—make themselves understood and work to understand others—with their fellow students. In Spanish Language and Culture classrooms structured this way, students have more practice time; they are working on tasks that reflect their interests and are using the language in situations that more closely resemble those outside of school.

Focus on Strategies
Successful Spanish language learners use a number of strategies that help make their learning more effective. These language learning strategies* are often categorized as cognitive, metacognitive, and social/affective. Communication or language use strategies* are an important component of communicative competence*. These include strategies used regularly by speakers of any language to enhance communication. They also include repair and compensation strategies, which are particularly important in the early stages of language learning if students are to engage in communicative activities before they have extensive knowledge of the language.

* See Appendix B for definitions of terms.
Not all students acquire these strategies on their own. Most of them will benefit from explicit classroom instruction regarding language learning and language use strategies provided alongside instruction in Spanish itself. Once students are consciously aware of strategies, have practised using them, can select the most effective ones for a particular task, and can see the link between their own actions and their learning, they will be more motivated and more effective language learners.

Building on Prior Knowledge

The constructivist theory of learning suggests that we learn by integrating new information or experiences into what we already know and have experienced. Students do this most effectively through active engagement with tasks that are meaningful to them, in authentic contexts, using actual tools. For this reason, the content and tasks around which lessons and units are structured should be chosen from within the areas of experience of students. For example, if students are involved and interested in a particular sport, a task can be chosen that links with this interest. The learning activities will build on their knowledge and experience while encouraging them to increase their understanding and broaden their horizons.

Students will come to their Spanish language learning experience with different prior knowledge, even if they have similar cultural and socioeconomic backgrounds. Classroom activities that provide them with choice and flexibility allow students to make meaningful connections and to be actively involved in constructing their own learning.

Transfer

In addition to knowledge about content, students will come to their Spanish Language and Culture class with a large body of useful knowledge about language, even if they have never spoken a word of the language being taught. They can transfer knowledge of their first language and other languages they know or are learning to their learning of Spanish. However, their first language may also be a source of interference initially, as students try to apply generalizations that are valid for their dominant language to the new language they are learning. Students benefit from an awareness of differences as well as similarities in relation to any component of the language: the sound system, grammar structures, vocabulary, discourse features. They may also transfer language learning and language use strategies from one language context to another.

Language Learning and Culture

Intercultural competence is an essential element of any language learning endeavour. Knowledge of Spanish-speaking cultures alone is not sufficient. Cultures evolve over time. Minority cultures exist within the dominant culture in any society. If students develop the skills to analyze, understand for themselves, and relate to any culture they may come in contact with, they will be prepared for encounters with cultural practices that have not been dealt with in class.

See Appendix B for definitions of terms.
The Conceptual Model
The aim of The Common Curriculum Framework for Spanish Language and Culture, Six-Year Junior/Senior High School Program is the development of communicative competence in Spanish.

Four Components
For the purposes of this program of studies, communicative competence is represented by four interrelated and interdependent components.

- Applications deal with what the students will be able to do with the language, the functions they will be able to perform, and the contexts in which they will be able to operate.

- Language Competence addresses the students’ knowledge of the language and their ability to use that knowledge to interpret and produce meaningful texts appropriate to the situation in which they are used.

- Global Citizenship aims to develop intercultural competence, with a particular focus on cultures of the Spanish-speaking world.

- Strategies help students learn and communicate more effectively and more efficiently.

Each of these components is described more fully at the beginning of the corresponding section of this program of studies.

Modes of Communication
Because of the focus on using language to communicate in specific contexts, with a particular purpose or task in mind, three modes of communication are used to organize some of the specific outcomes.

Interaction is most often direct, face-to-face oral communication, but it can take the form of written communication between individuals, using a medium such as email where the exchange of information is fairly immediate. It is characterized principally by the opportunity to actively negotiate meaning, which is helping others understand and working to understand others. Interactive communication generally requires more speed but less accuracy than the other two modes.

Interpretation is receptive communication of oral and written messages in contexts where the listener or reader is not in direct contact with the creator of the message. While there is no opportunity to ask for clarification, there is sometimes the possibility of rereading or listening again, consulting references, or making the meaning clearer in other ways. Reading and listening will sometimes involve viewing and interpreting visual elements, such as illustrations in books or moving images in television and film. Interpretation goes beyond a literal comprehension to include an understanding of some of the unspoken or unwritten meaning intended by the speaker or author.

Production is communication of oral and written messages in contexts where the audience is not in personal contact with the speaker or writer, or in situations of one-to-many communication (e.g., a lecture or a performance where there is no opportunity for the listener to interact with the speaker). Oral and written presentations will sometimes be enhanced by representing the meaning visually, using pictures, diagrams, models, drama techniques, or other non-verbal forms of communication. Greater knowledge of the language and culture is required to ensure that communication is successful, since the participants cannot directly negotiate meaning.
Areas of Experience

In this Framework, the following areas of experience are recommended. Teachers should incorporate other or alternative areas of experience that are of interest to students.

A Spiral Progression

Language learning is integrative, not merely cumulative. Each new element that is added must be integrated into the whole of what has gone before. The model that best represents the students’ language learning progress is an expanding spiral. Their progression is not only vertical (e.g., increased proficiency), but also horizontal (e.g., broader range of applications and experience with more text forms, contexts, and so on). The spiral also represents how language learning activities are best structured. Particular areas of experience, learning strategies, or language functions, for example, are revisited at different points in the program, but from a different perspective, in broader contexts, or at a slightly higher level of proficiency each time. Learning is extended, reinforced, and broadened with each successive cycle.

Organization of the Program of Studies

General Outcomes

General outcomes are broad statements identifying the knowledge, skills, and attitudes that students are expected to achieve in the course of their language learning experience. The four general outcomes serve as the foundation for The Common Curriculum Framework for Spanish Language and Culture, Six-Year Junior/Senior High School Program and are based on the conceptual model outlined above.

Applications

• Students will use Spanish in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

Language Competence

• Students will use Spanish effectively and competently.

Global Citizenship

• Students will acquire the knowledge, skills, and attitudes to be effective global citizens, through the exploration of the cultures of the Spanish-speaking world.

Strategies

• Students will know and use various strategies to maximize the effectiveness of learning and communication.

The order in which the general outcomes are presented in the program of studies does not represent a sequential order, nor does it indicate the relative importance of each component.

Specific Outcomes

Each general outcome is further broken down into specific outcomes that students are to achieve by the end of each course. The specific outcomes are interrelated and interdependent. In most classroom activities, a number of outcomes will be dealt with in an integrated manner.

The specific outcomes are categorized under cluster headings, which show the scope of each of the four general outcomes. These headings are shown as bullets in the chart on page 12.

The specific outcomes are further categorized by strands, which show the developmental flow of learning from the beginning to the end of the program. However, specific outcomes for a particular grade level will be addressed in that year as well as in successive years. If we understand that language learning progresses in a spiral form, then language acquired in the preceding years will prepare the student for a broadening of applications and language acquisition in the following years.

GENERAL OUTCOMES
General Outcomes

Applications

Students will use Spanish in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes to

- impart and receive information
- express emotions and personal perspectives
- get things done
- extend their knowledge of the world
- use the language for imaginative purposes and personal enjoyment
- form, maintain, and change interpersonal relationships

Language Competence

Students will use Spanish effectively and competently to

- attend to form
- interpret and produce oral texts
- interpret and produce written texts
- apply knowledge of the sociocultural context
- apply knowledge of how text is organized, structured, and sequenced

Global Citizenship

Students will acquire the knowledge, skills, and attitudes to be effective global citizens, through the exploration of the cultures of the Spanish-speaking world to

- study historical and contemporary elements of Spanish-speaking cultures
- affirm diversity
- explore personal and career opportunities

Strategies

Students will know and use various strategies to maximize the effectiveness of learning and communication:

- language learning strategies
- language use strategies
- general learning strategies
Guide to Reading the Program of Studies

General Outcome 1: Students will use Spanish in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

YEAR 1
- to impart and receive information (1.1)
  - Share Factual Information (1.1.1)
    - share basic information (e.g., their name)
    - identify concrete people, places, things
  - Share Ideas, Thoughts, Opinions, Preferences (1.2.1)
    - express simple preferences (e.g., Me gusta la clase de español. No me gusta la clase de matemáticas)
    - express a personal response (e.g., respond to a song or story)
  - Share Emotions, Feelings (1.2.2)
    - respond to and express emotions and feelings (e.g., pleasure, happiness, estar + adjective)
  - Guide Actions of Others (1.3.1)
    - indicate basic needs and wants
    - give and respond to simple oral instructions or commands (e.g., ¿Tienes un lápiz?)
    - ask for permission

YEAR 2
- Share Factual Information (1.1.1)
  - ask for and provide information
  - describe people, places, things
  - respond to simple, predictable questions
  - explain series or sequences of events or actions

YEAR 3
- Share Factual Information (1.1.1)
  - ask for and provide information on a range of familiar topics
  - describe people, places, things, and series or sequences of events or actions

Specific outcome statements for each grade:
- read each page horizontally for developmental flow of outcomes from grade to grade
- read each page vertically for outcomes expected at the end of each grade

Read each page vertically for outcomes expected at the end of each grade.
Applications

Students will use Spanish in a variety of situations and for a variety of purposes.

- Express emotions and personal perspectives
- Impart and receive information
- Get things done
- Form, maintain, and change interpersonal relationships
- Extend their knowledge of the world
- To use language for imaginative purposes and personal enjoyment
Introduction

The specific outcomes under the heading Applications deal with what the students will be able to do with the Spanish language, that is, the functions they will be able to perform and the contexts in which they will be able to operate. This functional competence, also called actional competence, is important for a content-based or task-based approach to language learning where students are constantly engaged in meaningful tasks.

The functions are grouped under six cluster headings—see the illustration on the preceding page. Under each of these headings there are one or more strands that show the developmental flow of learning from grade level to grade level. Each strand, identified by a strand heading at the left end of a row, deals with a specific language function, such as sharing factual information. Students at any grade level will be able to share factual information. Beginning learners will do this in very simple ways (e.g., “This is my dog.”). As students gain more knowledge and experience, they will broaden the range of subjects they can deal with, they will learn to share information in writing as well as orally, and they will be able to handle formal and informal situations.

Different models of communicative competence have organized language functions in a variety of ways. The organizational structure chosen here reflects the needs and interests of students in a classroom where activities are focused on meaning and are interactive. For example, the strand entitled “Manage Group Actions” has been included to ensure that students acquire the Spanish language skills necessary to function independently in small groups, since this is an effective way of organizing second language classrooms. The strands under the cluster heading to extend their knowledge of the world will accommodate a content-based approach to language learning where students learn content from another subject area as they learn the Spanish language.

The level of linguistic, sociolinguistic, and discourse competence that students will exhibit when carrying out the functions is defined in the specific outcomes for Language Competence for each grade level. To know how well students will be able to perform the specific function, the Applications outcomes must be read in conjunction with the Language Competence learning outcomes.

Language Competence

Students will use Spanish effectively and competently.

- interpret and produce oral texts
- interpret and produce written texts
- attend to form
- apply knowledge of how text is organized, structured, and sequenced
- apply knowledge of the sociocultural context
Introduction

Language competence is a broad term that includes linguistic or grammatical competence, discourse competence, sociolinguistic or sociocultural competence, and what might be called textual competence. The specific outcomes under Language Competence deal with gaining knowledge of the Spanish language and using that knowledge to interpret and produce meaningful texts appropriate to a situation. Language competence is best developed in practical applications, that is, in the context of activities or tasks in which the language is used for real purposes.

The various components of language competence are grouped under four cluster headings—see the illustration on the preceding page. Under each of these headings there are several strands, identified by strand headings at the left end of each row, which show the developmental flow of learning from grade level to grade level. Each strand deals with a single aspect of language competence. For example, under the cluster heading attend to form, there is a strand for phonology (pronunciation, stress, intonation), orthography (spelling, mechanical features), lexicon (vocabulary words and phrases), and grammatical elements (syntax and morphology).

Although the outcomes isolate these individual aspects, language competence should be developed through learning activities that focus on meaningful uses of the Spanish language and on language in context. Tasks will be chosen based on the needs, interests, and experiences of students. The vocabulary, grammar structures, text forms, and social conventions necessary to carry out a task will be taught, practised, and assessed as students are involved in various aspects of the task itself, not in isolation.

Strategic competence is often closely associated with language competence, since students need to learn ways to compensate for low proficiency in the early stages of learning if they are to engage in authentic language use from the beginning. This component is included in the language use strategies in the Strategies section.
General Outcome 2: Students will use Spanish effectively and competently.

Grammatical Elements (2.1.4)

- Year 1
  - use, in modelled* situations, the following grammatical elements:
    - me/te/le gusta/n
    - commonly used verbs: ir, querer
    - regular ir and er verbs in the present tense
    - tener que + infinitive
    - ir + a + infinitive
    - definite and indefinite articles: el, la, lo, las, los, un, una, unas, unos
    - possessive adjectives: mi, tu, su, mis, tus, sus
    - demonstrative adjectives and pronouns: este/a, ese/a, aquel/a, estos/as, esos/as, aquellos/as

- Year 2
  - use, in modelled* situations, the following grammatical elements:
    - nos/les (os) gusta/an
    - caer bien/mal
    - possessive adjectives and pronouns: nuestro/a/os/as, vuestro/a/os/as
    - irregular verbs: poder, conocer, saber, venir, salir, decir, hacer, preferir
    - commands—regular verbs (tú form)
    - present progressive (estar + gerund)

- Year 3
  - use, in modelled* situations, the following grammatical elements:
    - commands—negative forms
    - commands—irregular verbs (tú form)
    - stem-changing verbs in the present tense
    - irregular verbs: dar, poner, traer
    - preterite tense (regular verbs)
    - perfect tense
    - direct object pronouns
    - reflexive verbs

Modelled Situations: This term is used to describe learning situations where a model of specific linguistic elements is consistently provided and immediately available. Students in such situations will have an emerging awareness of the linguistic elements and be able to apply them in very limited situations. Limited fluency and confidence characterize student language.

Examples include
- using sample dialogues that are read to the students by the teacher
- the teacher modelling sentence patterns to the students which they may repeat after the teacher (e.g., greeting-response)
- the student following a written example of a repeated sentence or grammar pattern
General Outcome 2: Students will use Spanish effectively and competently.

Structured Situations: This term is used to describe learning situations where a familiar context for the use of specific linguistic elements is provided and students are guided in their use. Students in such situations will have increased awareness and emerging control of the linguistic elements and be able to apply them in familiar contexts with teacher guidance. Student language is characterized by increasing fluency and confidence.

Examples include:

- When discussing a familiar topic, the language used for students is known and understood. If there is a guest speaker invited to discuss the topic, the speaker may have an accent with which the students are familiar. The speaker will speak using vocabulary the students know well.
- When reading a story, there are illustrations to help the reader comprehend the meaning of the written text. The topic, vocabulary, and the grammar elements within the story are familiar to the student.
- When teaching a specific grammar element, it is reviewed and practised with teacher guidance and direction.
General Outcome 2: Students will use Spanish effectively and competently.

Global Citizenship

Students will acquire the knowledge, skills, and attitudes to be effective global citizens, by exploring the cultures of the Spanish-speaking world.

- study historical and contemporary elements of Spanish-speaking cultures
- explore personal and career opportunities
- affirm diversity
Introduction

The outcomes for Global Citizenship deal with the development of intercultural competence,* encompassing some of the knowledge, skills, and attitudes needed to be effective global citizens. The concept of global citizenship encompasses citizenship at all levels, from the local school and community to Canada and the world.

The various components of global citizenship are grouped under three cluster headings—see the illustration on the preceding page. Under each of these headings there are several strands, identified by strand headings at the left end of each row, which show the developmental flow of learning from grade level to grade level. Each strand deals with a single aspect of intercultural competence. For example, under the cluster heading study historical and contemporary elements of Spanish-speaking cultures, there are strands for the processes and methods of acquiring knowledge about Spanish-speaking cultures, the cultural knowledge thus acquired, applications of that knowledge to aid comprehension and to communicate in appropriate ways, positive attitudes toward Spanish-speaking cultures, as well as knowledge of the diversity of those cultures.

Developing cultural knowledge and skills is a lifelong process. Knowledge of one’s own culture is acquired over a lifetime. Cultures change over time. Within any national group, there may be a dominant culture or cultures and a number of additional cultures. Rather than simply try to develop a bank of knowledge about Spanish-speaking cultures, it is more important for students to develop skills in accessing and understanding information about culture and in applying that knowledge for the purposes of interaction and communication. Students will gain cultural knowledge in the process of developing these skills. In this way, if they encounter elements of Spanish-speaking cultures they have not learned about in class, they will have the skills and abilities to deal with them effectively and appropriately.

The affirm diversity heading covers knowledge, skills, and attitudes that are developed as a result of bringing other languages and cultures into relationship with one’s own. There is a natural tendency when learning a new language and culture to compare it with what is familiar. Many students leave a second language learning experience with a heightened awareness and knowledge of their own language and culture. They will also be able to make some generalizations about languages and cultures based on their experiences and those of their classmates who may have a variety of cultural backgrounds. This will provide students with an understanding of diversity within both a global and a Canadian context.

*See Appendix B for definitions of terms.
General Outcome 3: Students will acquire the knowledge, skills, and attitudes to be effective global citizens, through the exploration of the cultures of the Spanish-speaking world.

Language learning strategies

Language use strategies

General learning strategies

Students will know and use various strategies to maximize the effectiveness of learning and communication.
Introduction

Under the Strategies heading are specific outcomes that will help students learn and communicate more effectively. Strategic competence has long been recognized as an important component of communicative competence. The outcomes that follow deal not only with compensation and repair strategies, important in the early stages of language learning when proficiency is low, but with strategies for language learning, language use in a broader sense, as well as general learning strategies that help students acquire content. Although people may use strategies unconsciously, the outcomes deal only with the conscious use of strategies.

The strategies are grouped under three cluster headings—see the illustration on the preceding page. Under each of these headings there are several strands that show the development of awareness and skill in using strategies from grade level to grade level. Each strand, identified by a strand heading at the left end of the row, deals with a specific category of strategy. Language learning and general learning strategies are categorized as cognitive, metacognitive, and social/affective. The language use strategies are organized by communicative mode: interactive, interpretive, and productive.

The strategies that students choose depend on the task they are engaged in as well as on other factors, such as their preferred learning style, personality, age, attitude, and cultural background. Strategies that work well for one person may not be effective for another person, or may not be suitable in a different situation. For this reason it is not particularly useful to say that students should be aware of, or able to use, a specific strategy at a particular grade level. Consequently, the specific outcomes describe the students' knowledge of and ability to use general types of strategies.

More specific strategies for each general category or type are included in the comprehensive list of strategies below. The specific strategies provided in the comprehensive list are not prescriptive but are provided as an illustration of how the general strategies in the specific outcomes might be developed.

Teachers need to know and be able to demonstrate a broad range of strategies from which students can choose to communicate effectively. Strategies of all kinds are best taught in the context of learning activities where students can apply them immediately and then reflect on their use.

Comprehensive List of Strategies

Language Learning Strategies

Cognitive

- listen attentively
- perform actions to match words of a song, story, or rhyme
- learn short rhymes or songs, incorporating new vocabulary or sentence patterns
- imitate sounds and intonation patterns
- memorize new words by repeating them silently or aloud
- seek the precise term to express meaning
- repeat words or phrases in the course of performing a language task
- make personal dictionaries
- experiment with various elements of the language
- use mental images to remember new information
- group together sets of things—vocabulary, structures—with similar characteristics
• identify similarities and differences between aspects of the Spanish language and own language
• look for patterns and relationships
• use previously acquired knowledge to facilitate a learning task
• associate new words or expressions with familiar ones, either in Spanish or in own language
• find information, using reference materials like dictionaries, textbooks, and grammars
• use available technological aids to support language learning (e.g., cassette recorders, computers)
• use word maps, mind maps, diagrams, charts, or other graphic representations to make information easier to understand and remember
• place new words or expressions in a context to make them easier to remember
• use induction to generate rules governing language use
• seek out opportunities outside of class to practise and observe
• perceive and write down unknown words and expressions, noting also their context and function
• be aware of cognates whose meanings vary in different languages

Metacognitive
• check copied writing for accuracy
• make choices about how you learn
• rehearse or role-play language
• decide in advance to attend to specific aspects of input
• judge own performance or comprehension at the end of a task
• keep a learning log
• experience various methods of language acquisition, and identify one or more considered to be particularly useful personally
• be aware of the potential of learning through direct exposure to the language
• know how strategies may enable coping with texts containing unknown elements
• identify problems that might hinder successful completion of a task, and seek solutions
• monitor own speech and writing to check for persistent errors
• be aware of own strengths and weaknesses, identify own needs and goals, and organize strategies and procedures accordingly

Social/Affective
• initiate or maintain interaction with others
• participate in shared reading experiences
• seek the assistance of a friend to interpret a text
• reread familiar self-chosen texts to enhance understanding and enjoyment
• work cooperatively with peers in small groups
• understand that making mistakes is a natural part of language learning
• experiment with various forms of expression, and note their acceptance or non-acceptance by more experienced speakers
• participate actively in brainstorming and conferencing as prewriting and postwriting exercises
• use self-talk to feel competent to do the task
• be willing to take risks and try unfamiliar tasks and approaches
• repeat new words and expressions occurring in conversations, and make use of the new words as soon as appropriate
• reduce anxiety by using mental techniques, such as positive self-talk or humour
• work with others to solve problems, and get feedback on tasks
• provide personal motivation by arranging own rewards when successful

Language Use Strategies

Interactive
• use words from own first language to get meaning across (e.g., use a literal translation of a phrase in the first language, use a first language word but pronounce it as in Spanish)
• acknowledge being spoken to
• interpret and use a variety of non-verbal clues to communicate (e.g., mime, pointing, gestures, drawing pictures)
• indicate lack of understanding verbally or non-verbally (Perdón, no comprendo, ¿cómo?, ¿perdón?, no entiendo, shrug shoulders)
• ask for clarification or repetition when you do not understand (¿Qué quiere decir ...? ¿Puede repetir, por favor?)
• use the other speaker's words in subsequent conversation
• assess feedback from a conversation partner to recognize if a message has been understood (e.g., partner may shrug shoulders)
• start again, using a different tactic, when communication breaks down (e.g., Quiero decir que ...)
• use a simple word similar to the concept to convey, and invite correction (e.g., pescado for pez)
• invite others into the discussion (e.g., ¿no?, ¿verdad?)
• ask for confirmation that a form used is correct (e.g., ¿Se puede decir esto? ¿se dice así?)
• use a range of fillers, hesitation devices, and gambits to sustain conversations (e.g., Bueno, de hecho ..., pues ..., entonces ...)
• use circumlocution to compensate for lack of vocabulary (e.g., La máquina que se usa para lavar la ropa for lavadora)
• repeat part of what someone has said to confirm mutual understanding (e.g., Quieres decir que ... / Es decir que ...)
• summarize the point reached in a discussion to help focus the talk
• ask follow-up questions to check for understanding (e.g., ¿Me entiende?, ¿Está claro?, ¿Me comprende?)
• use suitable phrases to intervene in a discussion (e.g., Hablando de ... / Perdón, pero ...)
• self-correct if errors lead to misunderstandings (e.g., Quiero decir que ..., mejor dicho ..., o sea ...)

Spanish Language and Culture, Six-Year Junior/Senior High School Program Strategies

55
Interpretive
• use gestures, intonation, and visual supports to aid comprehension
• make connections between texts on the one hand and prior knowledge and personal experience on the other
• use illustrations to aid reading comprehension
• determine the purpose of listening
• listen or look for key words
• listen selectively based on purpose
• make predictions about what is expected to be heard or read, based on prior knowledge and personal experience
• use knowledge of the sound-symbol system to aid reading comprehension
• infer probable meanings of unknown words or expressions from contextual clues
• prepare questions or a guide to note down information found in a text
• use key content words or discourse markers to follow an extended text
• reread several times to understand complex ideas
• summarize information gathered
• assess own information needs before listening, viewing, or reading
• use skimming and scanning to locate key information in texts

Productive
• mimic what the teacher says
• use non-verbal means to communicate
• copy what others say or write
• use words visible in the immediate environment

General Learning Strategies
Cognitive
• classify objects and ideas according to their attributes (e.g., red and blue objects, or animals that eat meat and animals that eat plants)
• use models
• connect what is already known with what is being learned
• experiment with and concentrate on one thing at a time
• focus on and complete learning tasks
• record key words and concepts in abbreviated form—verbal, graphic, or numerical—to assist with performance of a learning task
• use mental images to remember new information
• distinguish between fact and opinion when using a variety of sources of information
• formulate key questions to guide research
• make inferences, and identify and justify the evidence on which these inferences are based
• use word maps, mind maps, diagrams, charts, or other graphic representations to make information easier to understand and remember
• seek information through a network of sources, including libraries, the Internet, individuals, and agencies
• use previously acquired knowledge or skills to assist with a new learning task

Metacognitive
• reflect on learning tasks with the guidance of the teacher
• choose from among learning options
• discover how own efforts can affect learning
• reflect upon own thinking processes and learning approach
• decide in advance to attend to the learning task
• divide an overall learning task into a number of subtasks
• make a plan in advance about how to approach a task
• identify own needs and interests

• manage own physical work environment
• keep a learning journal, such as a diary or a log
• develop criteria for evaluating own work
• work with others to monitor own learning
• take responsibility for planning, monitoring, and evaluating learning experiences

Social/Affective
• watch others’ actions and copy them
• seek help from others
• follow own natural curiosity and intrinsic motivation to learn
• participate in cooperative group learning tasks
• choose learning activities that enhance understanding and enjoyment
• be encouraged to try, even though mistakes might be made
• take part in group decision-making processes
• use support strategies to help peers persevere at learning tasks (e.g., offer encouragement, praise, ideas)
• take part in group problem-solving processes
• use self-talk to feel competent to do the task
• be willing to take risks and try unfamiliar tasks and approaches
• monitor own level of anxiety about learning tasks and take measures to lower it if necessary (e.g., deep breathing, laughter)
• use social interaction skills to enhance group learning activities
General Outcome 4: Students will know and use various strategies to maximize the effectiveness of learning and communication.

Appendix B: Glossary

Actional competence: See “communicative competence.”

Cohesion and coherence: Cohesion and coherence are two important elements of discourse competence—see below. Cohesion in a discourse sequence is created by many words or phrases that link one part of the text to another. Coherence is more concerned with the large structure of texts: a single theme or topic, the sequencing or ordering of the sentences, and the organizational pattern (e.g., temporal sequencing, cause and effect, condition and result). Texts that are cohesive and coherent are easier to interpret.

Communicative competence: The model of communicative competence adopted in this document is roughly based on the models of Canale and Swain, and Celce-Murcia, Dörnyei, and Thurrell, but it includes insights from a number of other researchers including Byram, Bachman, and Cohen. It includes the following components:

Grammatical competence is defined by Savignon as “mastery of the linguistic code, the ability to recognize the lexical, morphological, syntactic, and phonological features of a language and to manipulate these features to form words and sentences” (37). These elements of communicative competence are developed in the Language Competence component under the cluster heading “attend to form.” Following Celce-Murcia, Dörnyei, and Thurrell, orthography has been added in the Framework.

Discourse competence “is the ability to interpret a series of sentences or utterances in order to form a meaningful whole and to achieve coherent texts that are relevant to a given context” (Savignon 40). It involves understanding and being able to use words and grammatical functions to make connections between elements of a text so that the text forms a meaningful whole.

Some examples of these words and grammatical functions are noun-pronoun references; relative pronouns; conjunctions, such as but, and, so, and words and phrases, such as therefore, afterward, on the other hand, besides, for example. Discourse competence is developed in the Language Competence component under the cluster heading “apply knowledge of how text is organized, structured and sequenced in Spanish.”

Sociolinguistic or sociocultural competence has to do with the appropriateness of language in relation to the context or situation. It includes such elements as sensitivity to differences in register or variations in language, nonverbal communication, and idiomatic expressions. Sociocultural competence is developed in the Language Competence component under the cluster heading “apply knowledge of the sociocultural context.”

Functional or actional competence covers the purposes of language users, the contexts in which they can operate, and the functions that they can carry out using the language. This competence is defined in the Applications component of the Framework.
Intercultural competence is a combination of knowledge, skills, and attitudes that enables individuals to communicate and interact across cultural boundaries. It includes the skills of finding information about a culture; interpreting this information in order to understand the beliefs, meanings and behaviours of members of that culture; relating one’s own culture to the target culture; and interacting with members of that culture. In the process of developing these skills, language learners will acquire knowledge of the other culture, a heightened awareness of their own, as well as knowledge of the processes of interaction between two cultures. A precondition for successful intercultural interaction is an attitude of openness and curiosity, as well as a willingness to look at the world from the point of view of the other culture. Intercultural competence is developed in the Global Citizenship component of the Framework.

Strategic competence, in early models of communicative competence, was defined as “ways to avoid potential [difficulties], or repair actual difficulties in communication, coping with communication breakdown, using affective devices” (Citizenship and Immigration Canada 13). The concept was later expanded to include any strategies used to enhance communication and language learning. See the entries for “language learning strategies” and “language use strategies” in this glossary. Strategic competence is developed in the Strategies component of the Framework.

Content-based language learning: In content-based language learning, students learn a second language while they are learning content from another subject area. This is the approach taken in French immersion and bilingual programming.

Culture: The members of the culture task force of the National Core French Study (LeBlanc) have defined culture as “the general context and way of life. It is the behaviours and beliefs of a community of people whose history, geography, institutions, and commonalities are distinct and distinguish them to a greater or lesser degree from all other groups” (44). An important element of a people’s way of life is their means of communicating amongst themselves, that is, their language.

Historical and contemporary elements of the culture may include historical and contemporary events; significant individuals; emblems or markers of national identity (myths, cultural products, significant sites, events in the collective memory); public institutions; geographical space (regions, landmarks, borders, frontiers); social distinctions; conventions of behaviour; and beliefs, taboos, perceptions, and perspectives. Choices about which elements to include should reflect the importance of the element within the culture, and the interests and developmental level of the students.

Discourse: Discourse is connected speech or writing that extends beyond a single sentence or utterance.

Discourse competence: See “communicative competence.”
Diverse, diversity: Within most cultures, there are groups of people who have cultural beliefs, values, and practices that are different from the majority or mainstream culture. These differences may be based on religion, national, or ethnic origin, social class, race, or colour.

Functional competence: See “communicative competence.”

Grammatical competence: See “communicative competence.”

Guided situations: This term is used to describe all the methods teachers and other helpful conversational partners use to help language learners understand and produce language.

Oral language is more easily understood if speech is slow and clearly articulated, with pauses to assimilate meaning, and if it is accompanied by gestures, facial expressions, body language, or visuals that help to express the meaning. Language learners will have less difficulty understanding a familiar speaker—one whose voice, accent, and speech habits are well known to them—speaking about a topic that they know well and are interested in.

Written language is more easily understood if, for example, there are illustrations to support the text, there are titles and subtitles to guide the reader, and the topic is a familiar one.

Both oral and written production can be guided by providing students with language models (e.g., sample sentence structures, text forms, and patterns of social interaction), and by providing a language-rich environment (e.g., illustrated thematic vocabulary lists on classroom walls, labels on classroom objects, correction guides, illustrated dictionaries).

As students become more proficient, these supports can gradually be removed until the language they are exposed to closely resembles language in authentic situations.

Idiomatic expression: An idiom or an idiomatic expression is a word or group of words that has a commonly accepted meaning that is different from the literal meaning. Some examples include the following: he passed away (he died), happy as a lark (very happy), I’m fed up (I’ve had enough, I’m disgusted, I’m bored).

Intercultural competence: See “communicative competence.”

Kinaesthetic ability: This is the ability to use the body to express ideas and feelings, and to use the hands to produce or transform things.

Language learning strategies: These are actions taken by learners to enhance their language learning.

Cognitive strategies operate directly on the language and include such things as using different techniques for remembering new words and phrases, deducing grammar rules or applying rules already learned, guessing at the meaning of unknown words, or using different ways to organize new information and link it to previously learned language.

Metacognitive strategies are higher order skills that students use to manage their own learning. They include planning for, monitoring, and evaluating the success of language learning.

Social strategies are actions learners take in order to interact with other learners or with speakers of the target language.
Affective strategies are methods learners use to regulate their emotions, motivation, and attitudes to make them more conducive to learning.

Language use strategies: These are actions taken to enhance communication. In early conceptual models of communicative competence (Canale and Swain), strategic competence was one component. It was defined as the strategies used “to compensate for breakdowns in communication due to performance variables or to insufficient competence” (30). Subsequent models have broadened the definition to include non-compensatory strategies. The term “language use strategies” is being used, rather than “communication strategies” to reflect this broader range. The strategies in the Framework are organized according to the three communicative modes: interactive, interpretive, and productive.

Language use strategies can be seen as a subcategory of language learning strategies, since any action taken to enhance communication or to avoid communication breakdown can be seen as increasing the chances that language learning will take place. Language use strategies can, however, be used with no intention of trying to improve learning of the language.

Lexical phrase: A group of words that functions like a single word (e.g., all of a sudden, lie down, well done).

Lexicon: Lexicon covers all kinds of words, both content words (e.g., dog, run, happy) and function words (e.g., him, from, but). It also includes lexical phrases, which are groups of words that function like single words (e.g., all of a sudden).

Mechanical conventions: These are the conventions used to make written text easier to read. They include such things as capitalization, punctuation, paragraphs, titles, or headings.

Morphology: Morphology is the part of grammar that deals with changes in words that mark their function in the sentence (e.g., changes in verb endings or adjectives to mark agreement).

Non-verbal communication: A large part of what we communicate is done without the use of words. Meaning can be communicated by gestures, eye contact, facial expressions, body language, physical distance, touching, sounds, noises, and silence.

Orthography: Orthography describes the writing system of the language: the correlation between the sounds and the spelling where the writing system is alphabetic, the rules of spelling, as well as mechanical conventions, such as capitalization and punctuation.

Patterns of social interaction: Social interaction often follows fairly predictable patterns. Very simple patterns are made up of two or three exchanges (e.g., greeting–response). More complex patterns may have some compulsory elements and some optional elements that depend on the situation (e.g., express an apology, accept responsibility, offer an explanation, offer repair, promise nonrecurrence). Lengthy interactions and transactions can be carried out by combining simpler ones to suit the situation.

Phonology: Phonology describes the sound system of the language, including pronunciation of vowels and consonants, intonation, rhythm, and stress.
Proficiency: Canadian Language Benchmarks (Citizenship and Immigration Canada) defines proficiency as “communicative competence, demonstrated through the ability to communicate and negotiate meaning and through the ability to interact meaningfully with other speakers, discourse, texts and the environment in a variety of situations” (10).

Register: Register is the level of formality of speech or writing, based on the social context in which the language is used. Casual conversation uses an informal register, while situations like a public lecture or a radio broadcast demand a more formal register. The language used in a personal letter to a good friend or a close family member differs considerably from that in a formal letter in the business world.

Social conventions: These are the customs that accompany speech in social situations. They include actions, such as bowing, shaking hands, or kissing; topics that are taboo in conversation; conventions for turn taking, interrupting, or refusing politely; and appropriate amounts of silence before responding.

Sociocultural competence: See “communicative competence.”

Sociolinguistic competence: See “communicative competence.”

Spatial ability: This is the ability to perceive the visual-spatial world accurately and to work with these perceptions. It includes sensitivity to colour, line, shape, form, space, and the relationships among them.

Strategic competence: See “language use strategies.”

Syntax: Syntax is the part of grammar that deals with language at the sentence level (e.g., word order, types of sentences, the way sentences are constructed).

Task: Task is used in the Framework to mean “a piece of work that involves learners in comprehending, manipulating, producing or interacting in the target language while their attention is principally focused on meaning rather than form” (adapted from Nunan Designing Tasks).

Task-based language learning: In task-based language learning, classes are structured around meaningful tasks rather than around elements of the language itself, such as grammar structures, vocabulary themes, or language functions.

Text: Any connected piece of language, whether a spoken utterance or a piece of writing, that language users/learners interpret, produce, or exchange. There cannot, therefore, be an act of communication through language without a text.

Text forms: Different kinds of texts have typical structures. A letter, for example, has a different form or structure than a report or a poem. An oral interview is different from an announcement or an oral presentation. A sample list of text forms can be found in Appendix A.

Variations in language: Within any language, there are variations in the way people speak and write. Language can vary with the age, gender, social class, level of education and occupation of the speaker or writer. It can also vary from region to region within a country. Variations include differences in accent, vocabulary, and sometimes syntax, as well as differences in social conventions.
