Introduction

The Certificate in Literacy & Learning is designed to give recognition to your achievements over time in the reading, writing, and speaking skills you need at work and in your everyday life. It is awarded by the Department of Advanced Education and Literacy.

Which Certificate should I be doing?

The Certificate in Literacy and Learning is available at three different stages. You can work toward a certificate at any stage. It is up to you and your tutor or instructor to decide which certificate is best for you. You do not need to complete Stage 1 if you are already a Stage 2 learner.

Each certificate has Assignments with tasks to complete. You may not know how to do those tasks when you begin to work on the certificate. The tasks help you develop as a reader and writer over time. If you can easily do all the Assignments in one stage of the Certificate, then you probably should try the next stage.

How much time do I have to complete a Certificate?

Take as much time as you need. You can take six months or six years to complete a Certificate! We recommend that you take at least three months to finish a Certificate.

Granting of Certificates

Once you have completed all the Assignments and your tutor or instructor has signed them, you will be asked to evaluate your progress. An assessor from Manitoba Adult Learning and Literacy will interview you to examine your Record of Achievements and to discuss with you your opinion of the Certificate.

If you are successful, you will receive a Certificate of Literacy and Learning.

Getting Started

Your Record of Achievements Manual:

- is your personal property.
- will help you to keep a record of:
- what you have achieved
- what progress you have made towards the Certificate
- what areas need further work
- what further action you and your tutor or instructor should take.

You may want to leave your manual with your tutor or instructor for safe-keeping.

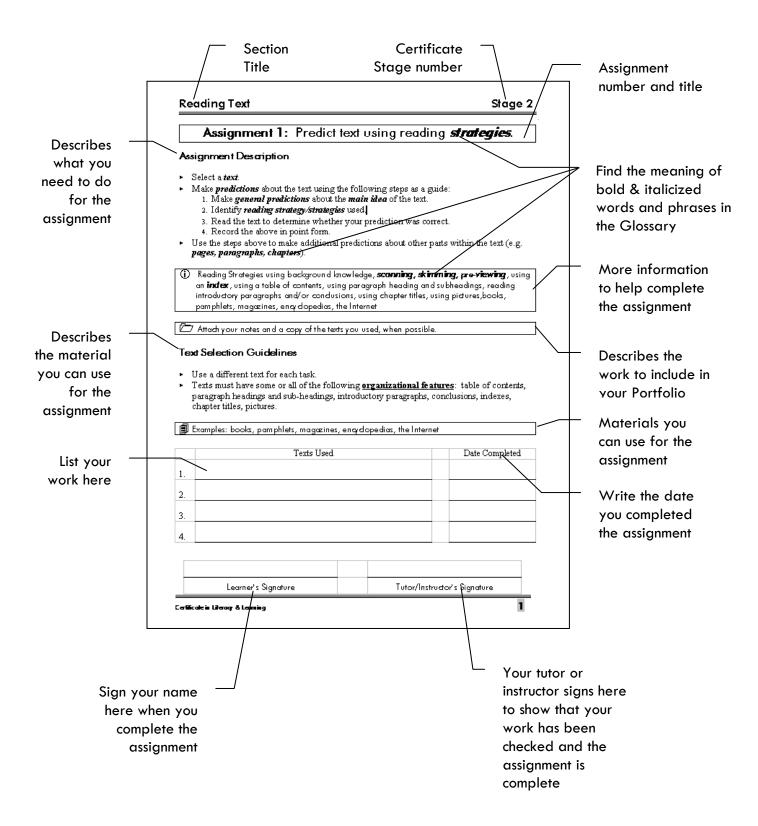

- includes additional materials to help you complete and keep track of your work:
- Glossary with definitions of words or phrases that are highlighted in bold italics
- Assignment Checklist to keep track of all your work
- Learner Skills Checklist that shows the literacy skills you used in your assignments
- should be kept in a Portfolio (a binder or folder) along with all your completed Assignments and samples of the materials you used to complete the Assignments. This symbol shows which work to include in your portfolio.

How do I complete the Assignments?

You and your tutor or instructor are free to choose the material to use as well as the ways to complete the Assignments. This symbol signals additional information ① and this symbol gives examples and suggestions of materials you can use. The reading and writing material should be something you would see in your daily life at home, work or in the community. Together, you and your instructor may decide on the best ways to learn and practice the skills and knowledge you acquire.

- Look for materials to use in your community. For example, you might look around your house for written instructions, pamphlets or notices that come in the mail. It is important that you think about how you use reading and writing in your everyday life.
- You need to provide evidence to show what you have done and that it has been assessed by your tutor or instructor. Over a period of time you will build up enough evidence to show that you have met the requirements for an assignment, then for a Section and finally for the Certificate.
- You and your tutor or instructor may choose to aim for one assignment at a time. You are likely to find, however, that in real life more than one assignment can be achieved in the same activity.

Assignment Map:

Which Section should I do first?

The Stages curriculum is not a series of rigid lessons to be taught by every tutor/instructor and followed by every learner. The skills in the Stages curriculum are basic building blocks. What is different is how you use these skills and what past experiences you bring to the learning situation. Each learner has his or her own set of priorities and needs, and this should be the starting point of your programme.

You can complete the Sections in any order you wish. You can skip from one Section to another or from one Assignment to another.

- Remember, you may take as long as you need to complete all the tasks and activities required.
- If you do not want to try all the Sections, the Assignment and Skills Checklists will be your Record of Achievements.

How will I be assessed?

- Your performance on each Assignment will be assessed by both you and your instructor or tutor.
- To get the Certificate you need to complete all the work in each Section of the Record of Achievements Manual. Each Section is divided into Assignments.
- Every time you complete an Assignment, you must meet certain criteria. These will be explained to you by your tutor or instructor before you begin each Assignment.
- When you complete any learning tasks in your regular classroom or tutoring work, you and your tutor or instructor can decide whether this piece of work will be part of the Certificate requirements. You will need to look at each Assignment in each Section to see if the regular work you are doing can 'fit in' to the requirements. This work then becomes a part of your Portfolio.
- You will need to show that the Certificate has been earned over time. So, do different Assignments on different days. Do not try to do the Assignments all at once. Each assignment gives specific details on how it can be completed.

Good luck!

Reading

Reading words

o Use what you know about syllables, word parts and root words to help you read and understand new words.

- o Find words in a dictionary.
- o Use a dictionary or glossary to find the meaning or pronunciation of new words.
- o Read words that are important to you such as words you use at work, or for personal interests.

Understanding what I have read

- o Use your previous knowledge and experiences to help understand what you am reading.
- o Have a purpose for reading.
- o Ask questions that will be answered by reading.
- o Make guesses about what a text will say before you read, and check your guesses by reading.
- o Connect what you learn from reading with what you already know about a topic.
- o Read easy text quickly and more difficult text more slowly.
- o Change the way you read, depending on your purpose for reading and how difficult the reading is. Some ways of reading are: skimming, scanning, reading in detail, re-reading and reading ahead.
- o Find main ideas and supporting points.
- o Look for information or find answers to questions.
- o Figure out what the author's purpose was for writing, and for whom he or she was writing. Some purposes are: to persuade, to describe, to instruct or to inform.
- o Understand that information is presented differently for different audiences and purposes.
- o Get information from picture or diagram and connect this to what the text says.
- o Show that you have understood by telling someone about what you have read, writing a report or making a summary.
- o Use lists, notes, webs, outlines, and maps to help you understand what you have read.

Document Use

Understanding documents

- o Figure out the main idea, purpose and audience for a document.
- o Have a clear purpose for reading the document and finding information.
- o Preview a document and notice:
 - how it is organized,
 - titles, headings and labels, and
 - key words and phrases.
- o Know and use ways to deal with difficult words.
- o Use main and sub-categories to find information.
- o Combine information from more than one document.
- o Read maps, understanding and using directions, symbols, legends, distances and scale.
- o Understand and use the features of graphs and charts, including title, axis, scales, key, and labels.
- o Find information in simple, double line and bar graphs.
- o Make comparisons and notice trends in the data, and think about the meaning of these trends.
- o Find information in diagrams and other graphics.

Completing documents

- o Preview the document to see:
 - how it is organized,
 - if there are instructions for completing the form,
 - what information is required, and
 - if you will need to gather information before you complete the form.
- o Know the purpose of the form: why is the information being gathered, who will use it, and for what purpose?
- o Gather the information needed to complete the form.
- o Follow instructions for completing the form.
- o Write answers that are clear, complete and concise.
- o Know the spelling of words that are often used on forms.
- o Print or write neatly.
- o Proof-read to see if there are errors or missing information.

Generating documents

- o Gather information and present it so that it makes sense to others.
- o Know that information can be presented in different ways, and pick a format that will work well for your data.
- o Use titles and labels that help the reader understand.
- o Pick a scale that makes sense of your data.

Writing

Use of writing process

o Understand your audience and purpose for writing. Select the best organization and style for the content, audience and purpose. (e.g. write a paragraph, create a char, provide information in numbered points, etc.)

- o Make a plan before you begin to write.
- o Think about your audience and purpose for writing when you plan:
 - what you will say,
 - the form your writing will take,
 - how much you will write, and
 - how you will organize your ideas.
- o Use your plan to help you write by hand or on the computer.
- o Find sources for the information you want to include in your writing. The information could come from other people, from your reading, or from media like videos or the Internet.
- o Gather information, take notes and write down where you found the information.
- o Decide if you have enough information, and if what you have collected is right for your audience and purpose.
- o Organize your writing around a clear main idea and supporting points.
- o Put your ideas in logical order.
- o Stay on topic.
- o Make links or bridges between your ideas so the reader can easily follow what you are saying.
- o Write paragraphs that include topic sentences.
- o Find and correct mistakes in grammar, punctuation, spelling and capitalization.
- o Write a final copy after you have asked yourself these questions:
 - Have I left anything out?
 - Have I repeated myself?
 - Is everything on topic?
 - Are my ideas in a logical order?
- o Think about your writing, and set goals for how you would like to improve your writing skills.

Punctuation

o Correctly use commas, apostrophes and speech (quotation) marks.

Grammar

- o Use a variety of sentence types in your writing.
- o Use verbs correctly, so that verbs agree with subjects, and you use the correct verb tense.
- o Use linking words so that your writing flows and is unified.

Word focus: Spelling

- o Use methods of learning to spell that fit with your learning style.
- o Know when correct spelling is important or not so important.
- o Learn to correctly spell words that sound the same but are spelled differently. (e.g. there, their, they're)
- o Know and use some guidelines or rules for spelling.
- o Take chances in writing new words.
- o Understand the meaning and use of some common prefixes and suffixes.
- o Notice when you have misspelled a word, and understand the reasons for your errors.
- o Make and follow a plan to improve your spelling.
- o Use tools to help you with your spelling: dictionaries, glossaries, personal spelling lists, computer spellcheckers, electronic dictionaries and spellcheckers.

Handwriting and presentation

- o Print and write in a way that is neat and easy to read.
- o Make a final copy of your writing that has the right level of neatness and correctness for your purpose and audience.

Vocabulary and word choice

- o Learn new words by:
 - using what you know about root words, word families, suffixes and prefixes,
 - noticing and learning new words while you are reading, and
 - using a thesaurus to help you pick just the right word for what you are trying to say.

Oral Communication

Listening

o Know and use ways to concentrate on the speaker while you are listening.

- o Know key words that help you follow order (e.g. first of all, additionally, next, then, finally, etc.)
- o Know whether the speaker is giving you the information you need.
- o Listen for clues, like tone of voice, to help pick out important points.
- o Know and use ways of recording and remembering information.
- o Understand the difference between main points and specific detail.
- O Understand that not all information is equally important, and that you don't have to remember everything you hear.
- o Pick out the main ideas that relate to your purpose for listening.
- o Use repeated words or phrases, as well as summaries at the end of an explanation, to help you pick out the main ideas.
- o Identify the important details that relate to your purpose for listening.
- o Use words and actions that show you are paying attention to the speaker.
- o Be an active listener, making sure you understand what the speaker has said.
- o Know and use some ways to make sure you have understood the speaker, such as:
 - asking for information to be repeated,
 - asking questions to aid understanding,
 - paraphrasing (in other words repeating) what you have heard to make sure you have understood correctly.

Speaking

o Be clear about what information you need and why you need it.

- o Identify useful sources of information.
- o Make and follow a plan for gathering information.
- o Ask questions and make requests to gather information.
- O Use the right amount of formality or informality as you ask questions and make requests.
- o Review the information you have gathered and decide if there are things you still need to find out.
- o Think about whether you could have gathered information in a better way.
- o Make a plan for how you will give information to others.
- o Be aware of your audience and purpose for speaking as you make your plan.
- o Use a plan when you are giving information to others.
- o Give information in a logical order, so that the listener can easily understand what you are saying.
- o Know and use body language and phrases, which reassure the listener and signal respect.
- o Make a presentation to a small group, using volume, pacing, emphasis and formality that are right for your audience, and purpose for speaking.
- o Use cues that help an audience notice when you make an important point or change topic.
- o Introduce yourself or others to a group.
- o Know how to reassure others or make them feel comfortable in a situation.
