The economy of the twenty-first century will need workers who can respond and adapt to change and who are lifelong learners. Canada is on the verge of a workforce shortage that will create many new job opportunities. The ability to predict jobs or work of the future is becoming more and more challenging. Our knowledge-based economy requires more highly skilled workers at a time when the demographics of our country reveal a shrinking workforce and the underutilization of many of our workers. Work has been altered by factors such as

- globalization
- rapid spread of information and communication technology
- workforce population decline
- aging population

Canada is shifting to a new career-building paradigm that recognizes that career development is a lifelong process of skills acquisition and growth through a continuum of learning and mastery (Jarvis). People will need to play a greater role in the construction and development of their own careers. Canadians will need to develop a new set of career-building skills that will enable them to

- be flexible
- be adaptable
- be self-reliant in order to construct and manage their lives and careers
- access labour market information
- be able to use this information effectively

The boundary between work and life is becoming fuzzy, and people will need to understand and create a balance in their lives. In the new career paradigm, career development is the process of managing life, learning, and work. It means one’s whole life, not just one’s occupation. This paradigm requires Canadians to learn and develop a set of career-building skills that enable them to be self-reliant and able to construct and manage their lives and careers.
Rationale and Philosophy

The career development curricula have been designed to connect school learning with workplace and labour market realities; this connection will then contribute to increasing the number of students graduating from high school in Manitoba. The courses will provide a smoother transition between high school graduation and more appropriate post-secondary educational programming. These courses will help students acquire and apply knowledge and skills to make appropriate decisions for life, work, and the essential post-secondary education/training that is required in today’s economy. The experiential learning components will provide students with opportunities to explore potential occupations, and to demonstrate employability skills, essential skills, and specific occupational skills. The broad range of experiences may vary from community visitor presentations or volunteerism to community placements through which students have opportunities to gain knowledge and learn skills that are sometimes not available to them in their school setting.

The time allotted for community-based activities varies with the course level, with more time assigned to the higher grades. The following departmental curricula will be available:

Grade 9 Career Development: Life/Work Exploration
Grade 10 Career Development: Life/Work Planning
Grade 11 Career Development: Life/Work Building
Grade 12 Career Development: Life/Work Transitioning

With career information and experience, students will acquire enhanced self-confidence, motivation, and self-knowledge, and a greater sense of direction and responsibility.
Career Development Framework

Manitoba's career development curricula use the competencies outlined in the national Blueprint for Life/Work Designs as the foundation for student learning outcomes. The Blueprint for Life/Work Designs is the result of the work of the National Life/Work Centre, Canada Career Information Partnership, and Human Resources Development Canada, along with partners in every province and territory. The Blueprint was piloted across Canada via a four-year process that included diverse public and private sector agencies in all regions of Canada.

The Blueprint for Life/Work Designs model for a comprehensive career development program, as shown below, emphasizes the relationship of program content, processes, and structure. Each of these elements is equally important to the successful implementation of career development curricula.
Content

In Manitoba, the content of the career development courses is arranged into five units, with general learning outcomes (GLOs) indicated for each unit:

Unit 1: Personal Management
GLO A. Build and maintain a positive self-image.
GLO B. Interact positively and effectively with others.
GLO C. Change and grow throughout life.

Unit 2: Career Exploration
GLO D. Locate and effectively use life/work information.
GLO E. Understand the relationship between work and society/economy.
GLO F. Maintain balanced life and work roles.
GLO G. Understand the changing nature of life/work roles.

Unit 3: Learning and Planning
GLO H. Participate in lifelong learning supportive of life/work goals.
GLO I. Make life/work enhancing decisions.
GLO J. Understand, engage in, and manage own life/work building process.

Unit 4: Job Seeking and Job Maintenance
GLO K. Secure/create and maintain work.

Unit 5: Career and Community Experiences
This unit draws upon all student learning outcomes, targeting those that individual students need to focus on. In addition to individual learning outcomes, the following GLOs will be revisited:
GLO D. Locate and effectively use life/work information.
GLO J. Understand, engage in, and manage own life/work building process.

These outcomes include the employability skills employer groups suggest are lacking in too many prospective employees, particularly youth. In fact, work habits and attitudes strongly influence early adult earning, so education and training need to emphasize work behaviours as much as they emphasize job skills. Self-reliance grows out of the acquisition of these skills.
Processes

Processes are the approaches used to actually deliver the content. Some may be more suitable than others to particular settings. Processes could include the following:

- Outreach—provides ongoing information to individuals about the career development services and resources available to them.
- Instruction/Facilitation—includes group activities, career-related curricula, and peer support groups that help students acquire the knowledge, skills, and attitudes outlined in the career development outcomes. Experiential learning is also an effective method to engage students in career development.*
- Counselling—focuses on the interaction between an individual or a small group and a professional counsellor; helps students and adults explore personal issues related to life/work decisions; examines how to apply information and skills learned to personal plans; and facilitates the building of individualized career plans.
- Assessment—involves the administration and interpretation of a variety of formal and informal measures and techniques to help individuals gain an understanding of their skills, abilities, attitudes, interests, achievements, prior learning experiences, personal style, learning style, work values, and lifestyle needs.
- Life/Work Information—encompasses a variety of resources that provide current, unbiased information about work roles, educational programs, and work opportunities. Such resources include computer-based career information delivery systems, the Internet, print and media materials, informational interviews, workplace speakers, and more.
- Work Experience—provides opportunities for students and adults in actual work settings to test life/work decisions and develop effective work attitudes and behaviours. Internships, youth apprenticeships, co-op programs, service projects, volunteerism, and paid work are some examples.
- Placement—organizes resources and offers assistance so that individuals can make successful transitions from the program to work or further education and training.
- Consultation—assists staff, administrators, trainers, employers, and others in areas of needed expertise related to career development.
- Referral—develops a network of outside educational institutions, agencies, and other organizations to offer additional services needed by students and adults.
- Follow-up—establishes and maintains long-term contact with individuals who have made transitions to determine effectiveness of life/work decisions.
- Mentorships—provide one-to-one support and role models for students.

* Information about experiential learning techniques can be found at the following website: www.njaes.rutgers.edu/learnbydoing/weblinks.html.
Structure

A solid organizational structure is the framework that supports the course’s activities. Key components include

- leadership—a management team usually led by a counsellor or career development professional who assumes the role of program coordinator
- management—a process for organizing planning, clarifying staff roles and responsibilities, securing resources, monitoring course implementation, and revising the course
- personnel—other staff, community resource persons, paraprofessionals, and volunteers who can help serve the wide range of individual career development needs through direct involvement or linkages with other organizations
- facilities—adequate space, materials, and equipment that ensure the delivery of high quality career development services
- resources—sufficient funds to purchase materials, equipment, and other items to implement career development courses
Roles and Responsibilities

Principals

As the school leader, the principal needs to understand the goals and structure of career development courses. There is a need to coordinate the guidance and career education courses with the overall school program, assigning suitable staff and communicating with parents and the larger community about the courses. These responsibilities should include

- establishing a school advisory team
- implementing and supervising career education courses
- in-service development of staff members responsible for course implementation
- developing a career education plan for the school
- arranging for physical facilities, resources, and staff necessary for the successful implementation of the courses
- ensuring adequate time is scheduled in the school timetable to allow students to participate in all aspects of the courses
- coordinating partnerships in the school community and broader local community
- ensuring workplace safety and health regulations apply to student training and placement

Students

Student responsibilities increase as students proceed through the school system. These include

- taking responsibility for their learning
- taking responsibility for managing their behaviour
- getting along with others in a variety of settings in the school or community
- demonstrating social responsibility
- developing and setting educational goals
- completing their education plans and portfolios
- complying with workplace safety and health regulations
Parents*

Parents have an important role to play in their children’s learning. They can encourage their children’s learning by

- working collaboratively with the school to help students develop their education plans and portfolios
- supporting and helping students with critical decision making
- supporting the students’ educational and occupational goals
- monitoring students’ progress and reviewing their progress toward the completion of their Annual Education Plans
- maintaining contact with the students’ teachers
- supporting and taking an interest in all of their children’s assignments and activities, both inside and outside school

Teachers

In addition to the usual duties conducted by the subject area classroom teacher, career education teachers should

- monitor the overall academic progress of their students
- monitor the completion of the students’ education plans
- review the education plans with parents and students throughout the year
- refer students who require individual assistance or short-term counselling to a guidance counsellor in accordance with the school process
- register students participating in career and community experiences in advance of placement
- invite community partners to provide a variety of career exploration activities for their students
- provide work-site orientation that includes workplace safety and health education
- conduct a work-site safety evaluation at the beginning of a placement
- visit each student work site at least once and not less than every 20 hours of student participation
- participate in the ongoing review and evaluation of the career education course

* In this document, the terms parent and parents refer to both parents and guardians. The term parents is used with the recognition that in some cases only one parent may be involved in a child’s education.
Community Partners

Community partners include

- sector councils, employers, and workers within the wider school community who participate in school-based curricular activities and facilitate educational visits
- social and community agencies that might offer skilled staff to lead or support small-group instruction
- staff from local and regional post-secondary educational and training institutions

Principals and teachers should work with their communities to facilitate collaboration and opportunities for involvement through such means as

- in-school visits by community-based representatives
- community-based mentorships
- consultations with sector councils and employers to prepare students for employment
- placements for job shadowing, work experience, community service, internship, and school-work transition activities

Community partners must provide safe and healthy workplaces and any specific safety training required.
Career and Community Experiences

One of the main goals of education is to aid students in their transition to the workplace. Community experiences can be used in a variety of ways. They are an extension of formal education beyond the confines of the school building, enabling students to become familiar with the workplace and enabling employers to participate in education. They make school more responsive to the needs of students, industry, and labour. Both school-sponsored career exploration and community-based work experience are intended to help prepare students for the transition from secondary school to the world of work or further education and training. A community experience provides students with an opportunity to apply classroom learning in a context outside of school and to bring back to the classroom new perspectives about their learning. Community experiences also provide students with the chance to gain new skills that can be used in future work.

Preparing students for a career and community experience:

Successful career experience placements in the community require that students be prepared for the expectations of work sites. Students should be knowledgeable about what to expect and what is expected of them. Students must understand that they need to adapt to the workplace environment and not perceive it as an extension of the school environment. Students need to know what work sites require in terms of behaviour, clothing, and workplace safety.

Considerations for placing students in community experience:

Community placements should match the interests and abilities of each student. Educators should decide whether a student is adequately prepared to participate in a community-based placement. Educators should provide each student with an adequate knowledge and understanding of the placement before the student begins any on-site visit.

Community experience workplace safety:

Students must have an in-school orientation that includes work-site safety awareness. This should prepare students to identify, observe, and apply their knowledge to health and safety issues in the workplace. Students should know the following before being placed:

- potential dangers at the job site and how they will be protected
- the right to refuse work if they feel it is unsafe
- hazards (such as noise or chemicals) and what they should know to avoid these hazards
- site-specific safety orientation and training they will receive before they start work
- safety gear they are expected to wear and who is responsible for providing the gear emergency procedures for events such as fire, chemical spills, or robbery location of fire extinguishers, first aid kits, and other emergency equipment workplace health and safety responsibilities
procedures if injured on the work site who the first aid attendant is and how he or she can be contacted

Manitoba’s Career Development Curricula

Each career development curriculum is divided into five themes: Personal Management (Unit 1), Career Exploration (Unit 2), Learning and Planning (Unit 3), Job Seeking and Job Maintenance (Unit 4), and Career and Community Experiences (Unit 5). Grade 9 and Grade 10 curricula place greater emphasis on personal introspection and career exploration while Grade 11 and Grade 12 curricula focus more on community experiences and transition planning.

All four curricula provide learning outcomes that are necessary for a successful transition into life/work experiences for the future. The higher the grade level, the greater the expectations are that students will be able to acquire, apply, and personalize learning outcomes to assist their life/work transitions. The Grade 9 curriculum provides students with an overview of career development outcomes with emphasis on building a positive self-esteem, exploring self-assessment, locating work information, and selecting high school courses. The Grade 10 curriculum places a greater emphasis on student outcomes related to communication skills, work information, work trends, self-assessment, matching personal skills to occupations, stereotyping and discrimination in the workplace, and work-search tools. The Grade 11 curriculum focuses student learning on personal management skills, life/work balance, and transition from high school. In Grade 11, students will have up to 46 hours to apply the specific learning outcomes during their Career and Community Experiences unit. The Grade 12 curriculum gives students opportunities to internalize all the learning outcomes in a classroom setting and spend up to 80 hours applying and personalizing these outcomes in their career and community experience. The Grade 12 emphasis is on the transition from high school to post-secondary training and preparation for employment.

The four career development curricula are optional and can be offered in sequence or independently of each other. The learning outcomes of each curriculum build on prior curricula, and key topics are revisited to deepen understanding and extend application. Schools may choose to offer any or all of the career development courses, based upon local needs, priorities, resources, et cetera. Because of the nature and focus of the courses, adjustments are recommended if only one or two courses in career development are offered, particularly if at the Grade 11 or 12 level. If a school chooses to offer a career development course at Grade 12 only, it is recommended that the Career and Community Experiences part of the course be limited to a maximum of 68 hours to allow sufficient time to develop the knowledge and skills that will be needed to make the experience in the community effective.
Key to Understanding the Learning Outcome Code

All specific learning outcomes are identified with a sequence of characters (numbers and letters) separated by dots. These characters code the unit, the general learning outcome, and the specific learning outcome.

- The first number indicates the unit.
- The letter indicates the general learning outcome.
- The last number indicates the specific learning outcome.

Grade 11 Career Development: Life/Work Building—General and Specific Learning Outcomes

Unit 1: Personal Management

The learning experiences in this unit provide students the knowledge and skills to help them build and maintain a positive self-image and learn how self-image influences their lives. The theme assists students in developing the knowledge and skills necessary for effective communication, teamwork, and leadership. The students will learn to build successful relationships in all aspects of their lives. This section also helps students to discover and learn how to respond to change and personal growth as they pass through the various stages of their lives. These personal management skills are needed for success in work, learning, and life.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>General Learning Outcome (GLO) A: Build and maintain a positive self-image.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):

Students will be able to:

1.A.1 Evaluate the impact of self-image on self and others.

1.A.2 Identify own interests, skills, work values, learning styles, and work preferences.

1.A.3 Determine behaviours and attitudes conducive to reaching personal, social, and educational goals.
General Learning Outcome (GLO) B: Interact positively and effectively with others.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:

1.B.1 Illustrate how we show respect for the feelings and values of others.
1.B.2 Understand and apply appropriate skills, knowledge, and attitudes when responding to positive and negative criticism.
1.B.3 Demonstrate personal management skills such as time management, problem solving, stress management, and life/work balance.
1.B.4 Demonstrate openness to the diversity (of lifestyles, abilities, etc.) in the world.
1.B.5 Identify various communication skills, and adopt those that are culturally appropriate.
1.B.6 Explore all possible sources of financial aid for post-secondary education and training using personal management skills. (Include grants, bursaries, bank loans, band sponsorship, government financial assistance, other loans, work options, scholarships, and family assistance.)

General Learning Outcome (GLO) C: Change and grow throughout life.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:

1.C.1 Examine own communication skills and adopt those that are culturally appropriate.
1.C.2 Determine own work, family, and leisure activities, and recognize their impact on mental, emotional, physical, and economic well-being.
1.C.3 Explore and identify stressful behaviour, potential causes, and coping strategies.
Unit 2: Career Exploration

The learning experiences in this unit will assist students with the knowledge and skills needed to be able to locate and effectively use life/work information and to understand the relationship between work and society and the economy. Students will discover the importance of post-secondary education and explore the numerous post-secondary education and training opportunities. They will learn about the interrelationship of life/work roles and the changing career patterns of men and women. The career exploration section provides students with information that allows them to explore issues around occupational choice, the meaning of work, and the impact of these choices on their lives.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) D: Locate and effectively use life/work information.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:

2.D.1 Identify various sources that provide occupational information about the many different occupations that exist. (Include Internet, networking, and local community resources.)

2.D.2 Use career information resources to learn about the realities of occupational ladders within work clusters.

2.D.3 Match own current skills, interests, and work preferences to the realities and requirements of various work roles.

2.D.4 Examine how individuals in various work roles serve as sources of information, role models, and/or mentors.

2.D.5 Compare and discuss the occupational differences of being self-employed and working for someone.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) E: Understand the relationship between work and society/economy.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:

2.E.1 Analyze how local and global trends have an impact on work and learning opportunities.

2.E.2 Determine the importance of work in our lives.
General Learning Outcome (GLO) F: Maintain balanced life and work roles.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:
2.F.1 Determine how volunteering and extracurricular activities can be a way to explore occupational opportunities.
2.F.2 Examine work, lifestyle, and leisure scenarios that reflect the changes in life stages.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) G: Understand the changing nature of life/work roles.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:
2.G.1 Examine the opportunities and challenges of participating in a non-traditional employment role.

Unit 3: Learning and Planning
This unit has been designed to help students develop the ability to make effective decisions, set goals, make plans, and act on, evaluate, and modify plans to adjust to change. Students will be required to engage in and manage their own life/work building process. They review the various components of the high school curricula, reflect on personal experiences, and use this knowledge in developing an Annual Education Plan and a Career Portfolio. Students will learn about the changing nature of life/work roles, factors involved in making life/work enhancing decisions, lifelong learning, and its contribution to one's life and work. Students will understand and experience the process of life/work building.
General Learning Outcome (GLO) H: Participate in lifelong learning supportive of life/work goals.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:
3.H.1 Evaluate strategies for improving academic skills and knowledge, and adopt those that contribute best to the lifelong learning process.
3.H.2 Evaluate the significance of the High Five Plus One career development principles to life/work successes.
3.H.3 Review high school graduation requirements.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) I: Make life/work enhancing decisions.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:
3.I.1 Evaluate how decisions about school, family, leisure, and work affect other decisions and have an impact on one’s life.
3.I.2 Complete the steps required to plan for a transition from school to post-secondary education/training or work. (Include a budget.)
3.I.3 Examine alternative life/work scenarios, and evaluate their impact on life.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) J: Understand, engage in, and manage own life/work building process.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:
3.J.1 Develop and pursue plans in light of own ideal life/work scenarios.
3.J.2 Plan ways to experience different roles through work experience, volunteering, social events, and so on.
3.J.3 Review the purpose and content of a Career Portfolio.
Unit 4: Job Seeking and Job Maintenance

This unit gives students the opportunity to develop the skills and knowledge necessary to find jobs that are available at a local, provincial, national, and international level. They will develop the necessary skills needed for preparing resumés, completing job application forms, writing cover letters, and mastering job interviews. Students will acquire career management skills that will enable them to succeed in the labour market. The students will also acquire knowledge about unions, safe workplaces, and Manitoba labour practices.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) K: Secure/create and maintain work.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):
Students will be able to:
4.K.1 Identify and evaluate personal qualities needed to acquire and maintain work.
4.K.2 Demonstrate Employability 2000+ skills and knowledge necessary to acquire and maintain work.
4.K.3 Identify and assess own essential skills.
4.K.4 Explore skills and knowledge that are transferable from one occupation to another.
4.K.5 Demonstrate an understanding of workplace safety and health regulations. (Include rights, responsibilities, and hazard recognition and control.)
4.K.6 Recognize and discuss labour legislation and standards for Manitoba employees.
4.K.7 Describe the development and purpose of labour unions.
4.K.8 Identify and use work-search strategies required to seek work.
4.K.9 Identify and use work-search strategies to obtain and maintain work.
4.K.10 Recognize that work opportunities often require flexibility and adaptability.
Unit 5: Career and Community Experiences

This unit has been developed to provide students with community experiences that will assist them in better understanding the realities of the workplace and post-secondary educational and training institutions. Grade 9 and Grade 10 experiences could be limited to field trips, community guest speaker presentations, job shadowing, presentations by post-secondary educators, and private school training presentations. Ideally, Grade 11 and Grade 12 students would benefit from a longer time in the community to enhance previously taught generic work skills and to gain exposure to specific occupational experiences.

The specific learning outcomes for this unit are chosen for individual students based on their particular needs and interests. They can be chosen from any of the student learning outcomes in the course, but the following SLOs under GLOs D and J will be included.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) D: Locate and effectively use life/work information.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):

Students will be able to:

5.D.1 Analyze education plans to match suitable occupations with career goals.

5.D.2 Research and discuss career and community experience expectations and responsibilities.

5.D.3 Identify, using community resources and networking, a potential employer with whom to conduct a placement interview.

General Learning Outcome (GLO) J: Understand, engage in, and manage own life/work building process.

Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs):

Students will be able to:

5.J.1 Evaluate different occupations through career and community experiences, and determine how such experiences have an impact on own life/work decisions.

5.J.2 Explain how learning about self and the work site is important to the life/work building process.

5.J.3 Reflect on and revise own strategies to locate, interpret, evaluate, and use life/work information.
Curricular Connections

Grade 11 Physical Education/Health Education

Teachers should be aware that some of the specific learning outcomes included in the Life/Work Building curriculum are similar to some in the Grade 11 Physical Education/Health Education curriculum. The learning outcomes may be similar but are dealt with in different ways in the respective curricula. Teachers are encouraged to consult each other to ensure a minimum of overlap. These overlapping topics include:

- stress management
- safe and healthy lifestyle practices
- goal setting
- development of an action plan

Assessment*

The effectiveness of the career development courses will be determined by students’ achievement of learning outcomes and through ongoing communication with parents and community partners. All four career development courses require the students to complete and/or revise Annual Education Plans (or, in Grade 12, a Transition Plan), compile a Career Portfolio, and participate in community activities. Teachers and students must continually observe, assess, and evaluate achievement of learning outcomes in all components of the courses. Teachers will also consult with community placement supervisors/mentors as to student performance at the community sites.

Information from assessment will help improve student learning and identify areas for course improvement. It will help teachers and guidance counsellors determine how well their planned career exploration activities are working. It will also provide them with feedback on how other components of the career education courses are working and help them make any changes to assist students in achieving their goals. It is important that teachers have students review their learning progress and plans for improvement and that this is reflected in the Annual Education Plans and Career Portfolios. It is especially important that parents be involved in discussions regarding their children’s progress. Teachers and guidance counsellors should gather information from parents and consult with them when assessing a student’s adjustment to school, achievement of goals, and plans for future education.

* Ideas in this section are drawn from Rethinking Classroom Assessment with Purpose in Mind: Assessment for Learning, Assessment as Learning, Assessment of Learning by Manitoba Education, Citizenship and Youth.
The assessment plan for each unit has been designed from the perspective that assessment for learning (formative assessment) and assessment of learning (summative assessment) are equally important. Therefore, the assessment ideas and guidelines for this course will reflect an attempt to balance both formative and summative aspects of student assessment.

Teachers should, when gathering information for assessment for learning, observe, read, and/or listen for specific evidence that shows how close the students are to achieving the specific learning outcomes that are targeted for that learning activity. Teachers should use this information to plan further instruction and to differentiate learning (i.e., adjust grouping practices, instruction, and/or resources). Teachers should also provide descriptive feedback to students about why their response is appropriate and what they have achieved, along with prompts or suggestions for ways to improve. Students should reflect on their own learning, considering their progress toward their goals and how they can move further toward them. The completion and revision of their Annual Education Plans provide opportunities for this reflection and goal setting.

Assessment of learning is designed to provide evidence of student learning and achievement to students, parents, educators, and perhaps employers or other educational institutions. This is the part of assessment that becomes public and is used to decide the future of students, so it is vital that all assessment of learning is done in a fair and accurate manner. Methods used in assessment of learning need to allow students to demonstrate their understanding and to give a variety of kinds of information and evidence of student learning. In the career development courses, one key tool used to make assessments of learning is the Career Portfolio, which will contain such items as work experience journals and reports, certificates of achievement, samples of work demonstrating various employability and occupational skills, resumés and cover letters, and so on, all of which will provide evidence of student achievement of the learning outcomes.

Assessment is an integral part of the entire learning process, and needs to be carefully planned and followed through on. Therefore, each unit begins with a proposed assessment plan that covers both formative and summative assessment elements, as well as suggestions for materials that may be collected in student Annual Education Plans and Career Portfolios. The following icons are used to indicate when a particular learning activity provides a good opportunity to assess students’ progress:

- A for Assessment for Learning
- A of Assessment of Learning
- Annual Education Plan
- Career Portfolio
Document Organization and Format

The assessment plans and suggestions for instruction for each of the five units suggest ways to provide opportunities for students to achieve the learning outcomes of this course. Grade 11 Career Development: Life/Work Building is organized according to the five units:

- Unit 1: Personal Management
- Unit 2: Career Exploration
- Unit 3: Learning and Planning
- Unit 4: Job Seeking and Job Maintenance
- Unit 5: Career and Community Experiences

In addition to the unit sections, there is an appendix of blackline masters (BLMs), an appendix of strategies to use in instruction and assessment, and a bibliography.

Guide to Reading the Units

The unit sections are organized as follows:

- An Assessment Plan points out particular learning experiences that provide opportunities for assessment for and/or assessment of student learning of each targeted general learning outcome (GLO). The related specific learning outcomes (SLOs) are indicated in parentheses after each learning experience.

- The unit title, identified in a main heading and in the footers on each page, provides the focus of instruction for the identified GLOs and SLOs.

- In the section Achieving the Learning Outcomes, suggested time allotments for each of the GLOs in the unit are given. The Suggestions for Instruction, a sequence of learning experiences, relate directly to the GLO under which they are grouped and to the SLOs listed beside them. When it worked within the sequence of the SLOs, the SLOs are grouped together to be taught in an integrated way.

- Icons beside the learning experiences indicate which ones provide opportunities for assessment for and assessment of learning—as stated on the Assessment Plan—as well as which will result in additions or revisions to students’ Annual Education Plans (AEPs) and Career Portfolios. Within certain learning experiences, there is an icon to indicate that supporting website addresses are available on the Manitoba Education and Training Career Development website at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html.
Note: Even though in this document there is often a one-to-one correspondence between learning experience and SLO, it is still understood that single learning outcomes are rarely taught in isolation—opportunities to demonstrate other SLOs will almost always be integrated in any one learning experience or sequence of experiences. For example, opportunities for students to demonstrate an SLO such as 1.B.1 (“Illustrate how we show respect for the feelings and values of others”) could be given whenever students work in partners or groups. Because this document follows a particular sequence of SLOs and learning experiences, this clustering of outcomes is not always demonstrated throughout the units.

See the following pages for a detailed clarification of reading the Assessment Plan format (page 23) and the Achieving the Learning Outcomes format (page 24).
Assessment Plan

Assessment Target: GLO A: Build and maintain a positive self-image.
SLOs 1.A.1–1.A.3

Assessment for Learning:
- Students each write a reflective journal entry describing how their personal self-images differ from others’ perceptions of them and evaluating how their own perceptions of themselves may have an impact on how others see them. (1.A.1)
- Using the data collected from the Personal Silhouette form, students each create a table or chart or use a Venn Diagram to compare their own perceptions with the perceptions of others. From the analysis, students identify one differing perception that they would like to discuss in a group setting. (1.A.1)
- Students each develop a three-column chart to create a profile of their strengths and preferences. Students list strengths in one column and work preferences in the second column. They use the third column on the chart to list activities previously performed as evidence. (1.A.2)
- Students each complete an exit slip about their own behaviours and attitudes that help them to overcome obstacles. (1.A.3)
- Students each complete a self-assessment of their significant seven life skills. Students reflect on what they learned and how they can improve their skills. (1.A.3)
- Students each complete an exit slip commenting on the significance of these life skills and how they’d like to improve their skills. (1.A.3)
- Students each use the information they have gathered to write a reflective journal entry describing how to build their own resiliency. (1.A.3)

Assessment of Learning:
- Using the information from the previous lessons, students respond to the following scenario:

  Your employer is currently considering you for a promotion, but the new position requires an ability to think logically and quickly. Using all the information you know about your strengths, write a letter to your employer highlighting why you should be promoted.

Assessment Target: GLO B: Interact positively and effectively with others. SLOs 1.B.1–1.B.7

Assessment for Learning:

- Students each write a reflective journal entry, reflecting on how different people value different areas of life, and how it is important to recognize the validity of these different focuses.
- Using a checklist, provide feedback to students on how they participated in the small group and class discussions and were respectful of feelings and values held by others. (1.B.1)
- Students each complete an exit slip about how they can show respect for others whose values and feelings are different than theirs. (1.B.1)
- Students each complete a Y-chart reflecting on the role plays and what students learned about effective ways to handle criticism. (1.B.2)
- Students peer assess their group mates on communication skills used in the presentation of the jigsaw information. (1.B.3)
- Students each complete an exit slip about using the four management skills in real-life situations either at home or at work, now and in the future. (1.B.3)
- Students each complete an exit slip defining respect and describing how to be respectful in a culturally diverse classroom. (1.B.4)
- Students each write a reflective journal entry about the obstacles one can encounter in a cross-cultural dialogue. (1.B.5)

Assessment of Learning:

- Students each write a report based on their research, identifying the best sources of financial aid for their post-secondary choices. When the reports are completed, the students share them with the class. Students store their reports in their Career Portfolios. (1.B.6)
- Based upon information collected, students create a two-to-three-year financial plan that will support their post-secondary goals (this would include the balance of any RESPs, possible grants or bursaries, and the amount of financial aid required). Assess these financial plans using a rubric. (1.B.6)
Assessment Target: GLO C: Change and grow throughout life. SLOs 1.C.1–1.C.3

Assessment for Learning:
- In small groups, students identify factors that have created change in their communication skills since starting school. Students each create a timeline showing the factors and acquisition of skills. (1.C.1)
- In groups of three, students participate in the Communication Feedback exercise to receive feedback on their communication strengths. (1.C.1)
- Students each complete an exit slip describing the communication skills information they found most useful and areas they plan to improve on in the future. (1.C.1)
- In small groups, students share their answers to the Wheel of Life discussion questions. (1.C.2)
- Students each draw a diagram of their ideal Wheel of Life. (1.C.2)
- Students write a reflective journal entry about ways of coping with stress. (1.C.3)

Assessment of Learning:
- Students write a speech they would give at their own retirement. The speech would reflect upon the three areas covered in the GLO C section: communication, balanced lifestyle, and coping with stress.
  Students create their own rubrics for this task and justify the criteria and weighting of the scale. (1.C.1–1.C.3)

| Recognize the purpose of this course and the meaning of career development (i.e., life/work building). | Career Management Expert
Introduce students to today’s world of work using some of the questions from “Who Wants to Be a Career Management Expert?” (see Appendix A, BLM 1). These questions can be distributed as a handout or presented using a program such as PowerPoint. Additional questions about local job market conditions can be added.

Ice-breaking
Provide the students with a definition for career development: “Intentional career development is creating the life one wants to live and the work one wants to do.” In small groups, the students discuss the meaning of the definition and share why they decided to take this course and what they hope to learn. Groups share their thinking with the class.

Explain to the students that the course will be used to help them develop career goals, revise or develop an Annual Education Plan, and build a Career Portfolio. They will spend more time in a community setting than they would have in Grade 9 or 10 career development courses. |

- Quizzes: http://work911.com/planningmaster/Career_Quizzes_And_Self_Assessment/
- Work Values Assessment: www.quintcareers.com/workplace_values.html Students each include other personal attributes that have been identified from their previous year’s portfolio as part of their self-assessment. Students each develop a three-column chart to list their strengths in the first column and work preferences in the second column. They use the third column on the chart to list activities previously performed as evidence. | 1.A.3 Determine behaviours and attitudes conducive to reaching personal, social, and educational goals. | Behaviours and Attitudes that Facilitate Achievement of Goals
Using a jigsaw grouping procedure (see Appendix B), each group of students reviews and shares information about the personal career of a different successful Canadian (such as Shania Twain, Michael Ondaatje, Mario Lemieux, Roberta Bondar, or Meg Tilly) focusing on the behaviours and attitudes that helped them to achieve their goals.

Supporting websites can be found at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html.

The class discusses the behaviours and attitudes demonstrated by these well known Canadians in pursuit of their goals.

The class compiles a list of common personal characteristics these individuals have displayed to overcome obstacles.

Students each complete an exit slip (see Appendix B) about their own behaviours and attitudes that help them to overcome obstacles.

A

Significant Life Skills and Beliefs
Present Significant Life Skills and Beliefs (see Appendix A, BLM 5).
In small groups, students discuss each of the Significant Life Skills and Beliefs and for each skill develop a list of practical examples or definitions of what these beliefs and skills mean to them (see Appendix A, BLM 5). Results are shared with the class.

Individually, students complete self-assessments of their significant life skills and beliefs on a 1 to 5 scale (see Appendix A, BLM 5). Students each reflect on what they learned from this and how they can improve their life skills.

Students each complete an exit slip (see Appendix B) commenting on the significance of these life skills and how they’d like to improve their skills.

| 1.A.3 (continued) Determine behaviours and attitudes conducive to reaching personal, social, and educational goals. | Resiliency/Protective Factors
Provide students with the definition of resiliency as “being able to recover from difficulties or being able to bounce back.”
In small groups, students research and generate lists of personal characteristics and protective factors involved in resiliency.

Supporting websites can be found at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html.

Once the students have completed the research, facilitate a follow-up class discussion about what increases the likelihood of resiliency (protective factors) and what decreases it (risk factors). The class should develop a chart listing personal qualities found in resilient youth and the major factors that contribute to putting youth at risk.

Students each use the information they have gathered to write a short reflective journal entry (see Appendix B) describing how to build their own resiliency.

For example, students could address a question such as the following: How will knowing this help me be more successful?

Letter Applying for Promotion
Using the information gathered in the previous lessons, students each respond to the following scenario:

Your employer is currently considering you for a promotion but the new position requires an ability to think logically and quickly. Using all the information you know about your strengths, write a letter to your employer highlighting why you should be promoted.

Provide a sample memo from a fictitious employer explaining this opportunity for a promotion (see Appendix A, BLM 6).

Assess the letters using a rating scale (see Appendix A, BLM 7).

When the forms are completed, set up a gallery walk (see Appendix B), where half the students display and act as curator to their work and the other half walk around and ask the following question: What do your activities reveal about your values (that is, about what you think is important in life)? Students switch roles so that everyone is given the opportunity to display and to view the displays.

Students each write a reflective journal entry (see Appendix B), reflecting on how different people value different areas of life, and how it is important to recognize the validity of these different focuses.

Circle of Courage and Three Spheres of Life

In small groups, students examine the Circle of Courage (see Appendix A, BLM 9) and list the values stressed in it. Students compare these values to those that were revealed in the Three Spheres of Life forms and discuss how various activities reveal the spirit of generosity or the spirit of belonging or the spirit of mastery or the spirit of independence. Remind students that small group discussions are a good opportunity to practise showing respect for the feelings and values of others.

| 1.B.2 Understand and apply appropriate skills, knowledge, and attitudes when responding to positive and negative criticism. | Responding to Criticism In a class brainstorming session, develop a list of strategies to deal with various forms of criticism in an effective manner. The class lists effective ways of responding to criticism, using likely outcomes and consequences as a method of identifying best responses. In small groups students role-play a few scenarios where someone is criticized. Examples:
  ■ Someone suggests you cheated on a test.
  ■ Boss tells you that you are always late for work.
  ■ A friend makes fun of your clothing.
  ■ A friend tells you that you have not told the truth. Students each complete a Y-chart (see Appendix B) reflecting on the role plays and what students learned about effective ways to handle criticism. |
| 1.B.3 Demonstrate personal management skills such as time management, problem solving, stress management, and life/work balance. | Personal Management Skills Using the jigsaw grouping strategy (see Appendix B), the class is divided into small groups with each group assigned one of the following management skills:
  ■ time management
  ■ problem solving
  ■ stress management
  ■ life/work balance Each group develops a definition and lists characteristics of the assigned management skill. Students regroup to share what they’ve learned with other groups. After the allotted time, students return to their seats for a class sharing and discussion of any ideas they generated. (EdChange, activity1.html)
As a class, students discuss the multicultural makeup of Canada and identify the multicultural makeup of their class.
Students each complete an exit slip (see Appendix B) defining respect and describing how to be respectful in a culturally diverse classroom. |
| 1.B.5
Identify various communication skills, and adopt those that are culturally appropriate. | Obstacles to Cross-Cultural Communication
The class discusses differences in the ways various cultures communicate due to differences in language, learning styles, family structure, religion, and conflict management styles.
In small groups, students develop a list of obstacles that could arise between two people from different cultures.
The groups report back to the class about the obstacle list they developed.
Supporting websites can be found at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html. |

Prescribed Learning Outcomes

1.B.6 Explore all possible sources of financial aid for post-secondary education and training using personal management skills. (Include grants, bursaries, bank loans, band sponsorship, government financial assistance, other loans, work options, scholarships, and family assistance.)

Suggestions for Instruction

Financial Aid Resources

Every student researches potential sources of revenue for post-secondary education and training including grants, bank loans, other loans, scholarships, band sponsorships, government financial assistance, work options, and family assistance.

Remind students of the various opportunities for post-secondary programs, especially the combinations of university and college programs. Students compare and contrast the various financial sources.

Supporting websites can be found at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html.

Ask guest speakers such as post-secondary institution representatives, Apprenticeship Branch representatives, and/or Manitoba Student Aid Branch representatives to present to the class.

Best Sources of Financial Support Report

Students each write a report based on their research, identifying the best sources of financial aid for their post-secondary choices. When the reports are completed, the students share them with the class. Students store their reports in their Career Portfolios.

Financial Plan

Based upon the information gathered in their research, students create a two-to-three-year financial plan that will support their post-secondary goals (this would include the balance of any RESPs, possible grants or bursaries, and the amount of financial aid required). Assess these financial plans using a rubric (see Appendix A, BLM 12). Students attach their completed financial plans to their AEPs.

Personal Communication Skills

Using a jigsaw grouping procedure (see Appendix B) and a vocabulary strategy, students research definitions for the terms listening skills, active listening, communication barriers, and effective self-expression.

Supporting websites can be found at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html.

The class discusses the results and develops a chart to record composite definitions.

In small groups, students identify factors that have created change in their communication skills since starting school. Students each create a timeline showing the factors and acquisition of skills.

Communication Feedback

In groups of three, students participate in the Communication Feedback exercise (see Appendix A, BLM 13) to receive feedback on their communication strengths.

When students have completed their role plays, the class discusses and analyzes what was learned about communication skills.

Students each complete a self-administered communication skills test online at a website such as the following:

- Communication Test www.queendon.com/tests/relationships/communication_skills_r_access.html

Students each complete an exit slip (see Appendix B) describing the communication skills information they found most useful and areas they plan to improve on in the future.

Assessment Plan

Assessment Target: GLO D: Locate and effectively use life/work information. SLOs 2.D.1–2.D.5

Assessment for Learning:
- Using a jigsaw procedure, students use four different types of sources to gather information about different occupations. Students each complete and revise an Evaluating Sources chart to compare the usefulness of the different types of sources. Students store their charts and the information researched in their Career Portfolios. (2.D.1)
- Students each complete an exit slip describing the significance of career ladders in career exploration. (2.D.2)
- Students each compare the differences in the two occupations using a Venn diagram or compare/contrast frame. (2.D.4)
- Students each complete an exit slip identifying what they learned about interviewing. (2.D.4)
- After the guest speaker has presented, students participate in a Take a Stand activity where they decide whether they would prefer to be self-employed or working for someone else. (2.D.5)

Assessment of Learning:
- Students present to the class the information collected about their five occupations of interest and why those particular occupations were selected. Provide feedback on the student presentations using the Presentation Assessment rubric. (2.D.3)
- Have students respond to the following RAP:
  Role: You are the group leader of a local Boys and Girls Club.
  Audience: The girls and boys in your group want to start looking for information on different careers available to them.
  Problem: Prepare a speech you would give to the students about the benefits and drawbacks to finding information from different types of sources. Include sources such as the following: Internet, personal communications (such as interviews and speakers), and books and pamphlets prepared by the industry.
  Provide feedback on the student speeches using a RAP speech rubric. (2.D.1–2.D.5)
Assessment Target: GLO E: Understand the relationship between work and society/economy. SLOs 2.E.1–2.E.2

Assessment for Learning:
- Students use the Gallery Walk strategy to present their research about global trends affecting local markets. (2.E.1)
- Students each freewrite on the topic of global trends having an impact on their future in Manitoba. Students share their freewrites in class, and the class discusses the similarities and differences between Manitoba trends and world trends. (2.E.1)
- Students each write a reflective journal entry describing what impact they believe work will have on their lives. (2.E.2)

Assessment of Learning:
- Students each choose a career that was in high demand in the past but is not any longer. Students each describe how society and the economy have had an impact on that career making it obsolete (e.g., the impact of technology in the banking or retail industry, the impact of cell phones on the telecommunications industry). Assess student descriptions using a rating scale. (2.E.2)

Assessment Target: GLO F: Maintain balanced life and work roles. SLOs 2.F.1–2.F.2

Assessment for Learning:
- Students each write a summary paragraph identifying five areas they could pursue through participating in school activities and volunteering in the community that could help them achieve their future goals. (2.F.1)
- Students each make a list of short-term goals, one goal for each of the areas they reviewed in the “Wheel of Life” exercise in Unit 1. Then the students each rank order the short-term goals with number 1 being extremely important and 12 being of minor importance. Then students also rank each item as to its long-term importance. (2.F.2)
- Students each rank order their personal goals again after their discussions with a family member. (2.F.2)
Assessment of Learning:

- Students each create a short written narrative or comic strip explaining why the family members’ rankings are the same or different than theirs and how discussing rankings with others influenced students’ own rankings. Assess how well the narrative demonstrates the students’ reflection on their goals and how others’ ideas help to clarify student thoughts. (2.F.2)

Assessment Target: GLO G: Understand the changing nature of life/work roles. SLO 2.G.1

Assessment for Learning:

- Students each complete a Y-chart identifying the challenges and opportunities one would likely encounter in a non-traditional work setting. (2.G.1)

GLO D: Locate and effectively use life/work information.

Prescribed Learning Outcomes

2.D.1 Identify various sources that provide occupational information about the many different occupations that exist. (Include Internet, networking, and local community resources.)

Sources of Occupational Information

Using a jigsaw procedure (see Appendix B), students in groups of four examine four different types of sources for occupational information. Once the initial research is done, each student fills out the Evaluating Sources chart (see BLM 15 in Appendix A) to compare and contrast the resources as to their usefulness. Then the groups re-form into groups of students who looked at Internet sources, other groups of students who looked at career computer programs, other groups of students who looked at a local newspaper, and other groups of students who interviewed people to compare notes and impressions. Students then go back to their original groups and revise their charts as appropriate.

Students store their charts and the information gathered in their Career Portfolios.

| 2.D.2 Use career information resources to learn about the realities of occupational ladders within work clusters. | Occupational Families or Ladders

In a class discussion, the students learn how occupations are often found in general areas of skill types (work clusters) but that these occupations are different in specific skills and training. For example, one occupational family could include the following: electrician’s helper, electrician, electronic technologist, electrical technologist, and electrical engineer. Students each complete an exit slip describing the significance of career ladders in career exploration. Supporting websites can be found at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html. |
| 2.D.3 Match own current skills, interests, and work preferences to the realities and requirements of various work roles. | Matching Skills with Work Roles

Students use the computer tool Skills Profiler to identify personal skills and to select occupations. Skills Profiler can be found at www.careerinfonet.org/acinet/skills/default.aspx?nodeid=20. Students review their Career Portfolios and their AEPs to add to the skill sets and occupational interests previously recorded. |
| Realities of Work

In small groups, students conduct research into five occupations of interest and record working conditions, current and future job prospects, National Occupational Classification sector designation, salary or annual wages, skills required, education level, and entry or admission requirements. Supporting websites can be found at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/cur/cardev/gr11_found/supporting.html. Each group of students presents to the class the information collected about their five occupational choices and why those particular occupations were selected. Provide feedback on the student presentations using the Presentation Assessment rubric (see BLM 16 in Appendix A). Students store the information they collected in their Career Portfolios. New information should be added to their AEPs. |

Challenges of Non-traditional Work
Students role-play some scenarios that could involve prejudice, stereotyping, and discrimination as it relates to working in non-traditional work roles.
Examples of possible scenarios:
- a woman working as a mechanic in a garage
- a man working as a secretary in a school

The class discusses long-term effects from negative work experiences as well as ways to combat negative behaviour and attitudes.

Assessment for Learning:
- Students each complete an admit slip explaining their understanding of lifelong learning and its importance in life/work. The teacher provides feedback on the ideas in the admit slips. (3.H.1)
- Students each write an exit slip identifying personal strategies or new strategies they will use in the future to become better learners throughout their lives. (3.H.1)
- Students each write a reflective journal entry about how the High Five Plus One principles might apply to their future plans. (3.H.2)
- Students each record in their AEPs (on page 4 of the form) their high school credits earned up to now, course selections they are presently taking, and those they are planning to take in the future. (3.H.3)

Assessment Target: GLO I: Make life/work enhancing decisions. SLOs 3.I.1–3.I.3

Assessment for Learning:
- Students each write a reflective journal entry about why people sometimes have difficulty making decisions and how poor decision making has an impact on school, leisure activities, work, and family life. (3.I.1)
- Students create a chart to identify all the factors to be considered in developing a transition plan. (3.I.2)
- Students each write an admit slip giving a few possible setbacks that could happen to cause someone to change one’s life/work goals. Students share and discuss their ideas with the class. (3.I.3)

Assessment of Learning:
- Students each develop a three-year plan for post-secondary training/work that will include living accommodations, food expenses, tuition fees, transportation costs, financial income, employee expenses, program of study, clothing expenses, and so on. Students each record plans in their AEPs. (3.I.2)
Students revisit the High Five Plus One principles, and students each develop an alternative plan (Plan 2) in case something interferes with Plan 1. Students each include a comprehensive written or oral report about their alternative plan (Plan 2) explaining why it might be needed and how their lives would be different as a result. Students each keep a print copy or audio recording of their reports in their Career Portfolios.

Assessment Target: GLO J: Understand, engage in, and manage own life/work building process. SLOs 3.J.1–3.J.3

Assessment for Learning:
- Students each list short-term and long-term goals with details about school planning and extracurricular activities. Students update their goals on their AEPs. (3.J.1)
- Students each create a chart listing activities, organizations, businesses, and community agencies that they can use to gain experiences for their Plan 1 (3.I.2) and Plan 2 (3.I.3). (3.J.2)
- Each group of students creates a classroom poster outlining the purpose and content of an effective Career Portfolio. (3.J.3)

Assessment of Learning:
- Interview each student about their plans, asking the following questions:
  - What is the career direction you have set for yourself?
  - Describe the actions you have taken and will take in the future to meet your career goals.
  - How will you deal with the anticipated challenges you may face trying to reach your goals?
  - Explain why it is necessary to have an alternate plan in your circumstance.
  - How can your extracurricular activities contribute to your career development?
- Students should use their Career Portfolios to elaborate on achievements, skills, and plans as they respond.
- Assess interview responses using the Rubric for Assessing Interview Responses. (3.I.2–3.J.3)

Assessment for Learning:

- Students each freewrite about personal qualities they are taking to the workforce. When they are finished writing, students each make a two-column chart with one column of the chart for their personal qualities and the other column for examples of how they used these qualities. (4.K.1)

- Students each review the Employability Skills 2000+ and a write summary of the employability skills that they have acquired, providing an example of how they have successfully demonstrated each one. Students each add their summaries to their Career Portfolios. (4.K.2)

  Or

  Students work through the skills inventory section in A Self-Managed Career Portfolio Guide. Students each document evidence of where and how they have acquired proficiency in each of the 11 employability skills. Students each add their results to their Career Portfolios. (4.K.2)

- Students each complete a reflective journal entry identifying and assessing their strongest essential skills. (4.K.3)

- Students identify and record in their Career Portfolios three occupations that match with their strongest essential skills. (4.K.3)

- Students each write an exit slip describing how the three occupations from one of the areas required similar skills and knowledge. (4.K.4)

- Students write an exit slip giving two specific examples of how Manitoba employment standards have had an impact on workers and working conditions. (4.K.6)

- Students each complete an admit slip giving two reasons that people belong to labour unions. Provide feedback and elaboration on student responses. (4.K.7)

- Students each fill out a Y-chart reflecting on their observations and thinking about labour unions. (4.K.7)

- Students each write an exit slip listing three telephone skills needed for effective job searching. (4.K.8)

- Students each write a reflective journal entry speculating on whether their research reflects these patterns of job advertising. (4.K.8)
- Students each write a reflective journal entry speculating about the reasons for downsizing, outsourcing, part-time and temporary work positions, contract work, continuous learning, mobility, and wage flexibility. (4.K.10)

- Students each write an exit slip giving two specific examples of flexibility and adaptability in the workplace. (4.K.10)

Assessment of Learning:

- Students each write a brief report comparing and contrasting their essential skills with their employability skills. Students also comment on which skills they would like to improve in order to pursue their careers of interest. (4.K.2–4.K.3)

- Using the career information websites, students each choose three of the ten occupational areas. In each of those three areas, students each look at three specific occupations. The occupations chosen must require at least two of the student’s strongest transferable employability skills. Students each record their findings on the Transferable Skills and Knowledge form. With the help of the school counsellor, students also identify high school courses that will provide transferable skills and knowledge for admission into post-secondary training in these areas. (4.K.4)

- After expert groups have reported back to original groups, students each write a quiz to determine their understanding of workplace safety and health. (4.K.5)

- Students each write a resumé for particular job opening. (4.K.9)

- Students each write a specific cover letter for their resumés. (4.K.9)

- Students participate in mock interviews for the jobs they targeted with their resumés and cover letters completed earlier in this section. (4.K.9)

GLO K: Secure/create and maintain work.

Prescribed Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to:

4.K.1 Identify and evaluate personal qualities needed to acquire and maintain work.

Suggestions for Instruction

Evaluating Personal Qualities for Work

In small groups, students generate a list of personal qualities one needs to be successful at acquiring and maintaining work. The small groups share and post their lists.

Students use improvisation techniques to create and demonstrate scenarios about taking directions, receiving constructive criticism, being adaptable, and exhibiting self-motivation and initiative.

Divide the class into two improv teams. One team acts out sample scenarios demonstrating the wrong way to respond to the situation and the other team acts out a better way to deal with the situation.

Some sample situations include the following:

- Explain to your boss why you are late for work.
- You do not understand the instructions that your supervisor has just given you.
- You are going to let your boss know that you can’t work in this area because it is unsafe.
- Your supervisor tells you that you are not doing the job correctly.
- You have completed your work assignment and you have nothing to do.
- In a job interview, you are asked to describe some of your achievements.
- During a job interview, you are asked why you left your last job.

Following the improvisations, students analyze the behaviour and actions of the participants in relation to what personal qualities were effective and what were not.

Students work through the skills inventory section (pages 25 to 31) in A Self-Managed Career Portfolio Guide, available at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/docs/support/c_portfolio. Students each document evidence of where and how they have acquired proficiency in each of the 11 employability skills. Students each add their results to their Career Portfolios.

4.K.3

Students each complete a reflective journal entry (see Appendix B) identifying and assessing their strongest essential skills. Students identify and record in their Career Portfolios three occupations that match with their strongest essential skills.

Students each write a brief report comparing and contrasting their essential skills with their employability skills. Students also comment on which skills they would like to improve in order to pursue their careers of interest.

Assessment for Learning:
- Students each compile a list of duties and responsibilities that they expect to encounter during their career and community experience placements. (5.D.2)
- Students each complete a Y-chart (see Appendix B) about how important it is to behave appropriately in the workplace. (5.D.2)

Assessment Target: GLO J: Understand, engage in, and manage one’s own life/work building process. SLOs 5.D.1–5.D.3

Assessment of Learning:
- During their career and community experiences, students each keep a daily log of their duties, activities, and any skill-based training. (5.J.1)
- Students each write a reflective journal entry in which they identify and explain any personal insights gained during the career and community experiences. They should also outline what their next steps should be to achieve their career goals. (5.J.3)
- In small groups, students discuss how the tangible evidence gained during their career and community experiences could be incorporated into their Career Portfolios. (5.J.3)

Assessment of Learning:
- During and toward the end of the placements, supervisors should be asked to evaluate the students placed in their work sites. (5.J.1)
- Upon completion of career and community experiences, students each make a classroom presentation about five things they liked about the occupation and five things they disliked about the occupation. They also are to include what they would look for in their next occupational placement. Assess using a presentation rubric. (5.J.1)
Students each write a report that includes the following:

- an analysis of why the placement was or was not suitable for them personally
- a comparison of their work skills, attitude, and behaviour with those of their co-workers
- a description of what one must learn to do to be successful at that work site
- a summary of what they learned about themselves and their placements
- a reflection on how their learning will help them in their life/work building process

Before writing the reports, help the class to create an assessment rubric for the report. Use this rubric to assess the reports. (5.J.2)

Students each use the community contacts recorded in Unit 3, SLO 3.J.2, to form the basis of their community outreach.

Students who have recently changed life/work goals need to plan and investigate new areas.

Placement Expectations and Responsibilities Students each compile a list of duties and responsibilities that they expect to encounter during their career and community experience placements. Provide students with a list of general expectations for responsible behaviour at the work site. The list includes behaviours such as punctuality, suitable appearance, appropriate dialogue with co-workers, safe workplace issues, and the handling of confidential information. Students role-play the possible consequences of inappropriate behaviour. Students each complete a Y-chart (see Appendix B) about how important it is to behave appropriately in the workplace. Agreeing on Expectations Schools and/or school divisions need to develop a career and community experience agreement form for students and their parents to read and sign. Terms of agreement addressing issues such as the following should be included:
  ■ waiving of wages or remuneration for work done as part of a community experience
  ■ coverage under The Workers Compensation Act by Manitoba Education and Training
  ■ health and safety precautions as determined by the school division and community placement, in accordance with school division safety and liability policies
  ■ permission to share personal information about students
  ■ attendance requirements (e.g., notification of planned absences in advance)
  ■ transportation to and from community sites
  ■ compliance with community placement requirements
  ■ costs to the student related to the community placement
  ■ teacher supervisor site visitations at least once every 20 placement hours

| 5.D.3 Identify, using community resources and networking, a potential employer with whom to conduct a placement interview. | Community Placement Interview

Using the information gathered at the beginning of this unit (5.D.1–5.D.2), students each contact one or more community representative to set up placement interviews to find suitable placements for their career and community experiences.

The interviews can be set up in a variety of ways depending upon the school situation and the individual student. The most common approach is to have the teacher contact the employer in advance and make arrangements for the student to set up the interview. Sometimes students are asked to arrange interviews with their site supervisor (employers) completely on their own. Some schools choose to contact the site supervisors or employers by mail or email and have students conduct follow-up interviews.

Possible placements could include post-secondary institutions/training centres (e.g., apprenticeship, community college, university) as well as work sites.

Community Placement

Once students have found suitable placement sites and talked to the site supervisors, students each ask their career and community experience employer to confirm the placement (see BLM 28 in Appendix A for a Sample Employer Confirmation Form).

All students must be registered with Manitoba Education and Training before being placed in any career and community experience. Registration forms are available at www.edu.gov.mb.ca/k12/policy/work_ed.html.

| 5.J.3 Reflect on and revise own strategies to locate, interpret, evaluate, and use life/work information. | Reflection on Career and Community Experience and Integration of Experience to Life/Work Plan

Students each write a reflective journal entry (see Appendix B) in which they identify and explain any personal insights gained during the career and community experiences. They should also outline what their next steps should be to achieve their career goals.

In small groups, students discuss how the tangible evidence gained during their career and community experiences could be incorporated into their Career Portfolios.

Students each revise and or update their Career Portfolios and Annual Education Plans.

Significant Life Skills and Beliefs

Being successful includes doing well in your school subjects, making and keeping friends, being involved in school life (sports, drama, etc.), managing your changing relationship with your parents, and earning and managing your economic resources.

Successful people are not always the smartest, the wealthiest, or the hardest working. Research (Glenn and Nelsen 49–50) has shown that successful people possess the following significant perceptions and life skills:

1. a belief in their ability to learn and to work
2. a belief that they are important
3. a belief they have the ability to change their lives
4. the ability to understand their emotions and to control their behaviour
5. the ability to communicate with others
6. the ability to take responsibility for their actions and adapt to situations
7. the ability to make decisions based upon universal values and principles

Group Task:
As a group read and discuss each of the significant life skills and beliefs and, for each, develop a list of practical examples or definitions of what these mean to you.

Sample list of answers for each of the significant beliefs and life skills:

1. confidence, put in an effort
2. belong to something, feel loved
3. control, power, talented, skilled
4. self-control, self-disciplined
5. find out how others feel, respect, listen, valued
6. stand up for what they believe, consequences, rewards, flexibility
7. moral life, believe in what they do and say, respect others and their views

Individual Task:
On the following sheet, assess your significant life skills and beliefs on a scale of 1 to 5 (1 being that you are starting to develop the skill or belief and 5 being that you exhibit the skill or belief on a daily basis). These are highly personal and individual assessments, and you are not required to share them with others.

Individual Assessment of the Significant Life Skills and Beliefs

Name ___________________________    Date __________________________

For each, rate your current level using the following scale:
1. Starting to develop
2. Developing
3. Developed
4. Use on occasion
5. Use on a daily basis

Skill:         Rating:

2. a belief that you are important                1 2 3 4 5
3. a belief that you have the ability to change your life 1 2 3 4 5
4. the ability to understand your emotions and control your behaviour 1 2 3 4 5

The office of the President is currently looking to hire three senior managers for the North Kildonan Plant. These positions will be filled by individuals currently in the Junior Management position. There are a few qualities necessary to be considered for the position of senior management.

- Logical thinker: The prospective senior manager must think logically and solve problems. In your letter, explain how you have these qualities and what you have done to demonstrate them.

- Quick decision making: Decisions need to be made quickly and wisely. In your letter, explain how you know you are able to fulfill this requirement.

- Other strengths: There are areas of strengths the President may not have thought about that would be beneficial to this position. Highlight other areas of strength you may have that would contribute to your management abilities.

Only applicants whose letters are clearly written will be considered for this position.

Sincerely,

Quinn McDuff

Instructions: List activities from your own life in each of the three spheres below. Activities that belong in more than one sphere should be written in the overlapping part of the appropriate circles. Share your results and discuss with a partner or small group.

The Spirit of Generosity: Character is cultivated by concern for others so that the child can say, “I have a purpose for my life.”

The Spirit of Independence: Free will is cultivated by responsibility so that the child can say, “I have the power to make decisions.”

The Spirit of Belonging: The universal longing for human bonds is cultivated by relationships of trust so that the child can say, “I am loved.”

The Spirit of Mastery: The inborn thirst for learning is cultivated; by learning to cope with the world, the child can say, “I can succeed.”
Circle of Courage Philosophy

The Circle of Courage is a model of positive youth development first described in the book Reclaiming Youth at Risk, co-authored by Larry Brendtro, Martin Brokenleg, and Steve Van Bockern. The model integrates Native American philosophies of child-rearing, the heritage of early pioneers in education and youth work, and contemporary resilience research. The Circle of Courage is based in four universal growth needs of all children: belonging, mastery, independence, and generosity.

Anthropologists have long known that Native Americans reared courageous, respectful children without using harsh coercive controls. Nevertheless, Europeans colonizing North America tried to “civilize” indigenous children in punitive boarding schools, unaware that Natives possessed a sophisticated philosophy that treated children with deep respect. These traditional values are validated by contemporary child research and are consistent with the findings of Stanley Coopersmith who identified four foundations for self-worth: significance, competence, power, and virtue. These are summarized below:

Belonging

In Native American and First Nations cultures, significance was nurtured in communities of belonging. Lakota anthropologist Ella Deloria described the core value of belonging in these simple words: “Be related, somehow, to everyone you know.” Treating others as kin forges powerful social bonds that draw all into relationships of respect. Theologian Marty observed that throughout history the tribe, not the nuclear family, always ensured the survival of the culture. Even if parents died or were not responsible, the tribe was always there to nourish the next generation.

Mastery

Competence in traditional cultures is ensured by guaranteed opportunity for mastery. Children were taught to carefully observe and listen to those with more experience. A person with greater ability was seen as a model for learning, not as a rival. Each person strives for mastery for personal growth, but not to be superior to someone else. Humans have an innate drive to become competent and solve problems. With success in surmounting challenges, the desire to achieve is strengthened.

Independence

Power in Western culture was based on dominance, but in tribal traditions it meant respecting the right for independence. In contrast to obedience models of discipline, Native teaching was designed to build respect and teach inner discipline. From earliest childhood, children were encouraged to make decisions, solve problems, and show personal responsibility. Adults modelled, nurtured, taught values, and gave feedback, but children were given abundant opportunities to make choices without coercion.

Generosity

Finally, virtue was reflected in the pre-eminent value of generosity. The central goal in Native American child-rearing is to teach the importance of being generous and unselfish. In the words of a Lakota Elder, “You should be able to give away your most cherished possession without your heart beating faster.” In helping others, youth create their own proof of worthiness: they make a positive contribution to another human life.

Peer Assessment of Communication Skills

Name of Presenter: _______________________________________

Name of Assessor: _______________________________________

Provide some helpful feedback to your peers about their presentation skills.

Presentation: (Is presenter’s voice audible? expressive? Does the presenter make eye contact? Is the presenter’s speech well paced? Does the presenter use appropriate body language? Does the presenter project his or her personality and show enthusiasm? Is appropriate language used?)

Organization: (Is there a clear introduction? Are ideas developed fully and clearly? Does the conclusion leave the audience with a clear and powerful impression? Is there a clear focus to the presentation? Was the presentation given within the assigned time limits?)

Instructions:
1. Designate one member of your group to begin the exercise as Speaker A, one to be Listener B, and one to act as Observer C.
   Speaker A’s role is to explain his or her feelings and thoughts about the situation to Listener B.
   Listener B’s role is to try to understand and clarify the thoughts and feelings of Speaker A.
   Observer C’s role is to watch the scenario and, when the role play is completed, to provide feedback to the Speaker and Listener about their communication using the Communication Feedback Rules listed below.

2. Choose a scenario to role-play from the ones provided on the reverse or from your own experience or imagination.

3. Play the roles assigned as you enact your scenario.

4. Change roles and choose another scenario to role-play.

5. Change roles again so that each group member has had a chance to take on each of the three roles and choose another scenario to role-play.

6. Once you have completed role-playing three scenarios taking on each of the three roles, think about and note some comments about what you’ve learned about your communication skills to share in a class discussion.

Communication Feedback Rules
1. Talk about the specific behaviours you can see and hear (e.g., body language, facial expression, tone of voice, choice of words).
2. Be direct and be sure your feedback is relevant.
3. Tell how the behaviour made you feel.
4. Give your reactions—don’t judge or give advice.
5. Focus on behaviours that can be changed.
6. Give the other person a chance to explain his or her behaviour.
7. Give your feedback caringly. Feedback is not useful when it is meant to hurt.
8. Avoid sarcasm or a condescending manner when giving feedback.
9. Share the positive.
Possible Scenarios

Scenario 1
Rob and Jeff are very good friends. Lately, Jeff has noticed that Rob has changed from being very easygoing to being very irritable and quick to anger. Jeff knows that Rob is under a lot of pressure to perform well on the football team, and he suspects that Rob may be taking some form of steroids. Jeff is worried about Rob and wants to talk to him about it, but he knows he has to be very careful about how he brings up the topic.

Scenario 2
Mary has decided that she will work at a local retail store for at least two years after graduation before she thinks about going to university. She knows her parents expect her to attend university and to eventually study medicine, but she does not feel ready to begin that long process just yet. Mary is going to talk to her mother about this and try to get her onside with this decision.

Scenario 3
Joan is a great reader and collector of books, and she values each of her books a great deal. She lent one of her favourite books to Joe, who, after reading it, passed it on to Julie who read it and passed it on to Ted to read. By the time the book was returned to Joan, it was very worn and tattered. Joan is going to explain to Joe why she is reluctant to lend him any more books.

Scenario 4
Susan was absent from school for a week early in the year due to illness, and she missed some important instruction in her math class. As a result, she has been feeling somewhat lost, but she is not used to having to ask for extra help from teachers because she has always been very quick to learn, especially in math. In addition, she doesn't feel that she knows this year’s math teacher very well, so she is really not comfortable requesting help from her. Susan has decided that she needs to ask for some help sooner rather than later, though, so she is staying after class to talk to her teacher.

Scenario 5
John and Kelly have been friends since they started school in Kindergarten. Kelly also gets along very well with John’s girlfriend, Sara. Over the past couple of months, John has been seeing a girl from another school, and Kelly has covered for him a couple of times by telling Sara that they were out together “with the boys.” Kelly is very uncomfortable lying to Sara and has decided to tell John that he will not do it any more.
The Wheel of Life is a tool that many life coaches use to help their clients see how balanced the various areas of their lives are. Life’s activities are always shifting and so perfect balance cannot be achieved and maintained, but there are times when one area of your life may be requiring so much energy and time that other areas are suffering, and you feel your life is out of balance or even out of control. At these times, it helps to take a look at the big picture and to get some perspective.

To create your own personal Wheel of Life, you will examine your satisfaction with the various areas of life described below.

- Physical Well-Being: Feeling good about the condition of one’s body and one’s efforts to maintain health through exercise, sleep, eating habits, and so on.
- Money/Finances: Being able to match one’s income with one’s personal needs.
- Relationships: Being open to a loving and responsible relationship.
- Home/Family: Contributing responsibly to one’s home life and successfully getting along with family members.
- Fun and Recreation: Participating in individual and group activities that provide one with enjoyment and self-fulfillment.
- Self-Esteem: Feeling good about oneself; being alert and ready to respond to life’s challenges in ways that reflect thought and sound judgment.
- Energy/Enthusiasm: Feeling full of energy and ready to experience life to the fullest.
- Emotional Health: Recognizing one’s feelings and expressing them appropriately.
- Friendship: Sharing common interests, experiences, and feelings with a trustworthy companion.
- Work/School: Developing and implementing plans for future education, training, and occupational goals.
- Contentment: Being content with who one is, what one values, where one fits, and where one is going.
- Achievements/Successes: Accomplishing noteworthy actions, performances, goals, and so on.
1. Using a scale from 0 to 10, where 1 represents very low satisfaction and 10 represents very high satisfaction, rate your satisfaction with each of the areas of your life. This does not mean the amount of time you spend on each area, but how satisfied you are with the quality of each area.

Money/Finances
Relationships
Home/Family
Fun and Recreation
Self-Esteem
Energy/Enthusiasm

2. Plot each rating on the appropriate spoke of the circle graph below. The centre of the circle represents 0 and the outside circle represents 10.
3. Connect the points you’ve plotted on each spoke, and shade in the area that reaches toward the centre of the wheel.

4. To prepare for a group discussion, reflect upon and note answers to the following questions:
   - How balanced is your wheel?
   - What did you notice while shading the wheel?
   - In what areas were the results a surprise?
   - How have changes had an impact on you?
   - How do you think these areas of life will change as you grow older?
   - What would it take to move one of the numbers up a level or two?

Evaluating Sources

Directions:
On the chart below, fill in the following:

- In the first column, note the sources you looked at.
- In the second column, note whether you found all of the information you were looking for, some of the information, or little or no information.
- In the third column, note how easy it was to find the information from that source. Did you find it quickly and easily? Did you find some information, but it took quite a bit of time? Did you spend a long time with the source only to come up with little or no information?
- In the fourth column, comment on the currency and reliability of the source. How up-to-date is the information you found? How reliable is the source—is it produced by a government or educational institution? How accurate is the information—did you find the same facts from more than one source? Is the source biased? How do you know?

High Five Plus One

No matter what career path is chosen, there are some things that remain constant for all people. Canadian career development specialists originally called these constants the “High Five.” Some children have already learned about the High Five in school. A sixth principle has been recently added, giving us the “High Five Plus One.”

Change Is Constant
We change constantly, and so does the world around us—including the working world. Chances are that a single occupation will no longer take workers from the beginning to the end of their working lives. Adaptability is an important skill to carry into the world of work.

Learning Is Ongoing
Graduating from high school or a post-secondary program doesn’t mean that your education is complete. Education is not limited to classrooms in a school. Opportunities to learn are everywhere! Learn to recognize them and make your learning a lifelong experience.

Focus on the Journey
Travelling through life is like travelling down a road: having a destination gives direction, but most of the time is spent moving along. Pay attention to the journey, with all of its pitfalls, sidetracks, opportunities, and highways to new destinations.

Follow Your Heart
Dreaming about your future can help you to understand what you really want in life. Knowing what you want and keeping it in mind can give you the motivation you need to deal with life’s challenges. Listen to your inner voice.

Access Your Allies
The journey of life is not taken alone. Life is like a team sport, and your team members are your friends, family, teachers, and neighbours. Any of them can be willing and helpful allies when it comes to judging what steps to take on life’s path.

Know Yourself
The career planning constant or principle “Know Yourself” is the latest addition to the High Five Plus One. Knowing your true self by examining your values, beliefs, and interests in as much detail as possible will help you with career decisions as you travel along your career path.

Industry Training Partnerships defines essential skills for the workplace in Manitoba as “the reading, writing, numeracy, communication, teamwork, thinking, learning and computer skills required to successfully perform in the workplace and to maximize the use of other types of training.”

Employees at all levels must be able to

- read and understand a range of text from written work orders to online and print-based technical and policy documents
- utilize complicated workplace documents including technical manuals, blueprints, and health and safety regulations
- fill out and compose forms, work orders, and reports
- clearly speak and carefully listen in one-on-one and group settings
- know when and how to use numbers accurately whether measuring, converting imperial measurements to metric, or developing budgets and reports
- navigate through print and online sources to find information specific to a task
- think through workplace problems and challenges
- work as a team, whether on the plant floor or in company or union meetings
- keep learning and adapting to changes such as introducing International Standards Organization (ISO) requirements, and new technology

A cold call is a telephone call made during a job search to a potential employer that did not advertise any positions. Many job opportunities are never advertised, so cold calls are an effective work-search strategy.

Purposes of a cold call can include asking for a job interview, asking for an informational interview, asking about internships, asking about freelance work, and obtaining the names of additional contacts or leads for other job openings.

Suggested Procedure

1. Before calling a potential employer, research the company or organization to find out as much as you can about what it does, its philosophy, and its reputation in the community.
2. Find a contact person to talk to when you call the organization, preferably the manager of the area you are interested in. A quick phone call to the general receptionist can usually get you this information.
3. Prepare yourself to answer questions about why you are interested in working for that organization, what skills and experience you have, what your goals are, and so on.
4. When you call, be courteous and ask if this is a good time or if you can set a time to call back later.
5. When you talk to your contact, be sure to explain clearly and concisely why you are calling.
6. Be enthusiastic and professional throughout your conversation. Keep your questions clear and your responses focused and brief, and be sure to take notes so that you remember important details. Don’t be afraid to ask for the correct spelling of names.
7. Follow up on your conversation, sending any materials that were requested.
8. Write a thank-you note, thanking the person for taking the time to provide you with information or an interview.

Ask the following questions when assessing your own résumé or the résumés of others.

1. Are unique qualities, or personal accomplishments, clearly expressed?

2. Will the reader see and understand the accomplishments presented within the first few seconds of looking at the résumé?

3. Does the résumé address the needs of the target employers by showing that the applicant has solved problems similar to the ones the employers are experiencing?

4. Does the résumé convey the applicant’s ability to make an impact by outlining accomplishments in a clear and compelling manner?

5. Does the résumé have a sense of action and movement? Are action verbs used wherever possible?

6. Does the résumé design draw the eye to key information? Is the page clean and uncluttered? Is the résumé easy on the eye?

7. When you read the résumé, are you impressed?

Community Placement Specific Skills/Duties/Tasks

The list of duties/skills for this community site placement was developed in consultation with three clothing retail stores: Store A, Store B, and Store C. These duties were observed or performed alone or with assistance, and these workplace skills were developed. The student has been rated on a score of 1 to 5 to indicate skill proficiency:

- 1 represents no exposure
- 2 indicates exposure only; general information provided but no opportunity to practise
- 3 indicates practised activities, but additional training and practice are required
- 4 represents proficient performance; activities were performed under supervision; however, additional training and practice will be beneficial
- 5 indicates superior performance; performs activity independently without supervision and has sound understanding of activity

Strategies for Instruction and Assessment

- Admit Slips and Exit Slips
- Y-Charts
- Prompts for Reflection or Reflective Journal Entry
- Jigsaw Grouping
- Freewriting
- Gallery Walk
- Mind Maps
- Checklists
- Take a Stand
Admit slips are filled in by students at the beginning of class, ideally before they enter, but realistically in the first few minutes of class. Exit slips are filled in by students at the end of class before they are allowed to leave.

Purposes:

■ to help students focus on what they expect to learn in class
■ to help students reflect on what they have learned
■ to provide the teacher with information on student learning

Procedure:

Admit slip

1. At the beginning of class, students write
   ■ questions that were not answered for them in the previous class
   ■ an observation about where they are in the current unit or sequence of learning experiences
   ■ a focus statement about what they expect from this class

2. The teacher reads the admit slips as they are handed in, and responds whenever appropriate throughout the class.

Exit slip

1. Before leaving at the end of class, students write
   ■ one of the important things they learned during the class
   ■ a question that remains unanswered

2. The teacher responds to any questions from the exit slips at the beginning of the next class.

A Y-chart is a graphic organizer that can be used for a variety of purposes. Originally, this organizer was used to help students identify what a particular behaviour sounds like, feels like, and looks like, but it has also been used for reflective purposes, where students think back on a learning experience and identify the aspects of the experience that contributed to their learning. An example of a Reflection—Metacognition Y-Chart is given below:

Y-Charts

- What do you notice about your thinking?
- What did you remember to do? How did that help you?
- What do you plan to do next?

Student (and teacher) reflection on learning is a big part of assessment for learning. By developing their metacognitive skills (or by thinking about thinking), students are engaged in their own learning. They learn about how they learn and when to use what strategies, and they are able to improve their learning through setting goals and monitoring their achievement of these learning goals. Students pay attention to what they are learning and use what they have learned to make adjustments and changes in their thinking—they actively construct knowledge.

Select from the following general prompts to use and/or customize for class and small group reflection and for written reflective journal entries. One or two at a time can also be used on admit and/or exit slips.

- What is the purpose of learning these ideas and/or skills?
- What do I know about this topic?
- What strategies do I know that will help me learn this?
- Am I understanding these ideas?
- I now understand . . .
- What I just learned connects with . . .
- What are the criteria for improving my work?
- What have I learned about _____? (content and strategies)
- How have I learned about _____? (content and strategies)
- How can I apply/use/change what I have learned to/in/for my future work?
- I'm still wondering . . .
- I still don't understand . . .
- What problems do I still have?
- What did I get out of this learning experience/project?
- What does what I’ve learned mean to me?
- How am I now thinking about these ideas? How is this different from how I used to think of them?
- I feel ______. Why?
- What observations did I make about _____?
- How does what I’ve learned connect to other courses or subjects?
- How does what I’ve learned fit with what I already knew?
- I was surprised to read/hear/observe that . . .
- Describe the learning strategy or process we used. How effective was it?
What questions do I have?
Have I accomplished the goals I set for myself?
How could I have learned this in a different way?
What is another way to do this?
Would I do it the same way next time? Why or why not?
How will knowing this help me to do better work?
What else would I still like to know?
The task/learning experience would be more interesting if . . .
What could I have done to learn this more effectively?

References:
Jigsaw Grouping

Jigsaw was developed in 1978 (Aronson, Blaney, Silkes, and Snapp) and has since been modified in various ways. This cooperative learning strategy is one in which students become experts on part of a topic, which they then share with their group.

In the jigsaw grouping strategy, students belong to groups that are expected to learn a topic. Each member of each student team is given a different subsection of topic materials that is comprehensible on its own. To master this material, each team member meets with students from other teams who have been assigned the same material to learn. They also discuss means of teaching the material to their respective team members. The original teams re-form, and each student teaches the others his or her segment of the material.

References:

Freewriting

Freewriting is a write-to-learn strategy that is helpful in detailing what one already thinks and knows and needs to know about a topic. The main rule to freewriting is to write without stopping for a set period of time (usually five or ten minutes). If students get stuck, they should repeat either the opening phrase or the last word written or even “can’t write” until something comes to them. The trick is to keep the pen moving.

By not stopping to think, students are able to concentrate on ideas rather than on grammar or spelling or other issues of expression. It is a process of discovery for the students—they may know or think things they didn’t realize they knew or thought.

References:

Gallery Walk

The gallery walk strategy can be used in various ways—it can be used to activate interest in a topic, to acquire understanding of lesson content, and to demonstrate and assess learning. In a gallery walk, students are given the opportunity to learn through a process of observation, discussion, and reflection.

One basic gallery walk process is as follows:

1. Students or teachers set up stations or focus areas with visual or verbal material displayed together with a sheet asking one or two focus questions with space for various responses. Material (e.g., photographs, graphs, quotes, maps, posters, dioramas) may be selected by the teacher to provide particular information or may be work that students completed in an earlier learning activity. If the material is student work, one of the students who worked at creating it may remain at the station to act as curator, answering questions and providing explanations as the other students visit. (The role of curator should be rotated so that all students have an opportunity to circulate among the displays.)

2. In pairs or small groups, students visit the displays, one pair/group at each display. While visiting a display, students carefully observe the display, address the focus questions (and the responses of previous visitors if they were not the first), discuss their responses, and record their responses and questions on the sheet provided. Focus questions for student work could include What did you learn from this display? and What do you like best about this display?

3. After a set period of time, students are directed to move on to the next display and repeat the process of observation, discussion, and response.

4. When all groups of students have visited all of the displays, each group returns to the first station it visited. The student groups read through all of the responses to that station and create a summary of the responses, which they share with the class.

Gallery walk gets students up and moving around, talking to each other, and building on the ideas of each other.

There are many kinds of mapping strategies used for many kinds of learning purposes. The mind mapping strategy referred to in this document is also called graphic mapping. It is different from clustering, webbing, concept mapping, semantic mapping, or information mapping in that it includes visual elements such as pictures, shapes, symbols, codes, and colour, as well as lines and words. Adding graphics helps students tap into different ways of thinking/different parts of the mind.

Student-created mind maps can be used to generate ideas about a topic, to process ideas from a reading or presentation, or to present one’s understanding of a topic. However they are used, mind maps encourage a deeper understanding.

One process for creating a mind map follows (Manitoba Education and Training, Senior 4 ELA 4–118):

1. Set your paper horizontally and draw a key image, using colour. Images may trigger more associations than words, and colour appeals to the brain.
2. For each idea you associate with this image, draw a line from the image, and then print a word or short phrase on the line. Add images as they occur to you.
3. Before you add new ideas to the mind map, consider which words you associate them with. Make this association clear by placing new ideas on lines that branch from existing ideas, or by using arrows or colour codes.
4. Emphasize important ideas through colours, variations in size, lines, images, and spacing

Examples of a variety of mind maps can be found online at websites such as www.topicscape.com/mindmaps/.

Checklists are a simple and effective way to monitor and provide feedback on student participation and learning.

List students’ names down one column, and list the various criteria to consider when assessing a particular learning activity in other columns.

Example:

Date: ____________________________

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Student Names</th>
<th>Listened attentively and respectfully to ideas of others</th>
<th>Spoke respectfully when presenting ideas to others</th>

The strategy Take a Stand is a less formal variation of a debate. This strategy works well when students are thinking about and discussing topics that could be controversial or subject to a variety of opinions.

One procedure for using the Take a Stand strategy follows:

1. Choose two opposing topics or statements that are subject to different opinions.

2. Ask students who agree with the statement to move to one corner of the room, students who disagree to move to another corner of the room, and students who have mixed opinions or no firm opinion to move to another corner of the room.

3. Students in the “agree” group work together to formulate their reasons for agreeing, and students in the “disagree” group work together to formulate their reasons for disagreeing. Students in the other group discuss what aspects they agree or disagree with and what further information they would need to have a firmer opinion. If groups are too large, students should split into smaller groups to encourage more active participation.

4. A spokesperson from the “agree” group is asked to present their reasons to the rest of the students, trying to especially sway some of the undecided students over to their way of thinking. Any students who are convinced by the arguments of the “agree” group should move to that corner of the room.

5. A spokesperson from the “disagree” group is then asked to present their reasons to the rest of the students, trying to especially sway some of the undecided students over to their way of thinking. Any students who are convinced by the arguments of the “disagree” group should move to that corner of the room.

6. The class debriefs, discussing how successful the strategy was at bringing to light various viewpoints around a topic or issue.
